Fate Of Germans In Cherbourg Area Virtually Sealed

German Garrison At Cherbourg Almost Entirely Cut Off From Escape

ALL AVENUES OF FLIGHT GUARDED

By J. C. OESTREICHER
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

The fate of German forces defending the Cherbourg peninsula was virtually sealed today when American reconnaissance patrols plunged into the town of Barneville close to the west coast and American fliers reported hasty evacuation of Nazi troops from pivotal points on the battlefield.

Military installations at Barneville, La Haye Du Puits and elsewhere were being destroyed by the enemy.

Fast-moving American troops, veterans of Africa, Sicily and Italy, fanned out from captured St. Sauveur Le-Vicomte to take the town of St. Jacques De Nehou, 4 1/4 miles to the northwest. Little enemy resistance was encountered there although the Germans still put up a stubborn fight due west of St. Sauveur.

Nearing West Coast

Main Allied mobile forces operating on the peninsula were reported only eight miles from the west coast and some five miles from Barneville itself, which lies inland on a narrow estuary from Cherbourg familiar to peacetime travelers as terminus of the ferry line running to and from the island of Jersey.

As the Anglo-American campaign moved forward under the cautious direction of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery it became increasingly apparent that at least two German divisions still in action north of the Cherbourg battle-line face annihilation or capture.

So brilliantly has Montgomery's campaign been planned and executed that the German garrison at Cherbourg has no place to go.

Road Is Seized

With the seizure of Barneville, the Allies will have severed the last north and south road leading out of Cherbourg port. All other highways and railway lines already have been severed.

In no other period during this conflict, perhaps any other, has such a torrent of happenings come tumbling forth within 48 hours marking decisive progress in the war and new steps towards the realization of mankind's scientific dreams of generations past.

B-29 Most Important

Most important, of course, was the unveiling of Uncle Sam's new B-29 super Fortresses in their raid on Japan's vital Yawata steel works, now 48 hours back.

How many of these great battle-ships of the skies took part in the raid on Japan, is not specified but the damage done by them in their maiden appearance is described as very great. The important thing, however, is not the immediate result of their first bow on the stage of war, but the implications of this tremendous step towards the realization of plans of air-dreamers of half a century past.

Since the first painful beginnings of the development of the theories of modern air combat, after the close of World War One, forward-thinking flyers have dreamed of the day when bombers would be able to take off from any point on the earth's surface for a non-stop bombing mission against any other point on the globe.

PEARL HARBOR, June 17.—Advancing American assault forces on Saipan Island, temporarily halted by intense Jap mortar and artillery fire, ground slowly ahead today in the bitterest kind of fighting, with the Japanese defenders of the vital island in the Marianas group.

Up against prepared defenses of two Jap divisions, estimated to number between 20,000 and 30,000 men, the Americans regained lost ground Thursday after having made a short retreat the night before in the face of fierce enemy fire north of Charan-Kanoa.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, June 17.—American troops on Biak Island were revealed today to have smashed three tank-paced counter-attacks launched by bitterly resisting Jap defenders on Thursday.

Japanese, driving toward Borokoe airfield, crushed the Jap attacks killing 180 of the enemy and wounding many.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique revealed that the fighting took place as American units enveloped Jap strongpoints on a ridge west of newly captured Mokmer airfield.

Withering bazooka, rocket and mortar fire broke the Jap thrusts which slashed down the hills overlooking the airfield. Two Jap tanks were destroyed out of the three engaged.

A small Jap freighter and several coastal vessels were destroyed or damaged by American planes operating from Biak Island.

The Nazi agency DNB reported that violent battles have been taking place on Elba this morning between the German island garrison and strong Anglo-American tank units.

The landing, according to DNB, was made on the south of the island "from 60 landing craft."

The landing on Elba, designed to deny the Germans use of the sea route between Elba and Corsica, was effected while Allied Fifth and Eighth armies advanced steadily through the Italian peninsula toward the Florence-Pisa-Bologna area.

Bond Sales Must Be Speeded Here

Campaign Is Going Slowly—Too Many Buying Smallest Bonds

At noon today the total bond sales in the City of New Castle amounted to $232,356, a meagre showing considering the fact that the fifth war loan campaign is in its sixth day and the quota for New Castle is $5,155,000.

The low showing is not an entirely true picture of the bond sales, however, as many terms have not reported as yet.

One difficulty seems to be that too many people are purchasing $18.75 bonds who should be spending $75 or more. This isn't an $18.75 war, nor is this bond campaign geared to $18.75 purchases. Larger purchases are needed if the quota is to be met.

Citizens who have ordered bonds through banks or other issuing agents are urged to pick them up. Team leaders are urged to get their reports in as promptly as possible.

New Castle and the county at large is a long way from taking a sizeable bite out of the quota as yet. The time is now and the need is great.

Rain storms of yesterday appeared to be rather spotty, for while there was a real rain downtown, the suburban areas north of the city got none.

Most programs in the churches of the city and district of St. Andrew will center around the Father's day theme, this being the annual day for tribute to father.

New Castle was preparing salvage collection early today. Piles of paper were to be seen on the curb in many sections at an early hour. The collection is being made this afternoon.

Complaints registered by a number of residents of the city against damage caused by dogs that are around the streets after dark. They assert that the owners of these dogs do not respect property rights of others.

To PA Newc it appears that the past couple of days will probably take the record for many years for the great number of super news developments in any similar period of time.

Nazi Pilotless Plane Bomb Hits South England Hospital In Night

By NATALIA RENE
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, June 17.—(INS)—Rescue crews early this afternoon still were digging through the wreckage of a south England hospital which was struck by a Nazi pilotless plane last night, killing several nurses and patients and injuring others.

Officials feared that still more victims, both hospital staff members and patients, would be found buried in the debris. Crews worked feverishly amidst the ruins of one ward in which a number of children had been kept.

Several wards in the main hospital building were damaged severely by the blast, but the nurses insisted on remaining with their patients. One woman was undergoing an appendicitis operation when the bomb struck and the surgeons, defying the fire which resulted, completed their work and had the patient removed.

First Outposts Of Mannerheim Line Are Reached By Invading Force

By NATALIA RENE

MOSCOW, June 17.—(INS)—Soviet troops smashing across the Karelian isthmus drove to within 28 miles of Viipuri, immediate objective of the Russian attack and reached the first outposts of the Mannerheim Line today.

The Soviet communique announced capture of 100 inhabited localities, including four important railroad stations.

An International News Service dispatch from Stockholm said that the situation for Finland had grown very serious after eight days of the Russian offensive.

Bond Sales Must Be Speeded Here

Campaign Is Going Slowly—Too Many Buying Smallest Bonds

At noon today the total bond sales in the City of New Castle amounted to $232,256, a meagre showing considering the fact that the fifth war loan campaign is in its sixth day and the quota for New Castle is $5,155,000. The low showing is not an entirely true picture of the bond sales, however, as many teams have not reported as yet.

One difficulty seems to be that too many people are purchasing $18.75 bonds who should be spending $75 or more. This isn't an $18.75 war, nor is this bond campaign geared to $18.75 purchases. Larger purchases are needed if the quota is to be met.

Citizens who have ordered bonds through banks or other issuing agents are urged to pick them up. Team leaders are urged to get their reports in as promptly as possible.

New Castle and the county at large is a long way from taking a sizeable bite out of the quota as yet. The time is now and the need is great.

High Wind Whips Channel Waters

DOVER, June 17.—(INS)—A high north to westerly wind made beach conditions along the channel rough today. The sun shone intermittently through banks of broken clouds.

Visibility was good. The temperature was under 60 at 9 a. m. The barometer advanced a little during the night.

High water at Dover and Calais was scheduled for 10:22 a. m. and 10:41 p. m.

French Town Is Taken By Yanks

St. Jacques De Nehou Is Captured—Lies Across Peninsula Roadway

By CLARK LEE
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WITH AMERICAN FORCES ON THE NORMANDY FRONT, June 17.—2 p. m.—American troops slaying across the Cherbourg peninsula captured the town of St. Jacques De Nehou today, encountering only slight enemy resistance.

The town, which lies 4 1/2 miles northwest of occupied St. Sauveur Le-Vicomte, lies at a secondary road crossing the peninsula.

German resistance stiffened due west of St. Sauveur.

Troops of the 82nd American airborne division, tough veterans of Africa, Sicily and Italy, captured St. Sauveur and are playing a key part in liberation of the Cherbourg peninsula.

In somewhat scattered landings, paratroops and glider-borne units captured and held objectives on both sides of the Merderet river, but some groups fought in isolated positions for as much as four days before linking up with the main infantry forces.

Headquarters revealed officially that the American first division, and not the British as first reported, captured the town of Caumont.

Despite announcements to the contrary, Allied forces had not completely seized Montebourg up to late last night. The situation is now being clarified.

PA NEWC Observes

Despite the detour signs erected on Highland avenue where resurfacing work is in progress, a lot of motorists go driving through although the detour signs, Pa Newc is informed.

Rain storms of yesterday appeared to be rather spotty, for while there was a real rain downtown, the suburban areas north of the city got none.

Most programs in the churches of the city and district on Sunday will center around the father's day theme, this being the annual day for tribute to father.

New Castle was preparing salvage collection early today. Piles of paper were to be seen on the curb in many sections at an early hour. The collection is being made this afternoon.

Complaint is registered by a number of residents of the city against damage caused by dogs that are led around the street after dark. They assert that the owners of these dogs do not respect property rights of others.

To Pa Newc it appears that the past couple of days will probably take the record for many, many years, for the great number of super news developments in any similar period of time.

Maximum temperature, 88.
Minimum temperature, 64.

My grandmother was an unusual lass, a philosopher in her way, and as I read of the campaigns on, I think I can hear her say, "Just, not want not" and she'd smile a bit, but she meant it and now that we haven't enough of paper and rubber and things like that, I know grandma knew her stuff. Which brings me up to the subject at hand, it's paper for we're in a fix, to get sufficient for wartime needs, the weather is ninety six.

Bessemer Soldier Hoists First Flag Over City Of Rome

Sgt. George V. Marangoni Unfurled
Star-Spangled Banner At
Early Morning Hour

The first American flag to be elevated over government edifices upon a European capitol appeared in the City of Rome at 1:30 a. m. on the 4th of June according to a communication from Carey Longmire, news correspondent which reads in part as follows:

"Sgt. George V. Marangoni, of Bessemer, Pa., would think it an excellent idea to apprise President Roosevelt of his record.

"His officers are of the same opinion and the flag will be sent upon ascertaining that no other American combatant did so elevate the Stars and Stripes upon Rome before Sgt. Marangoni, to the president.

"Marangoni was in a jeep used by a Lieut. Gen. J. R. Pollock who is an officer of the British police and has for the past 20 years been head of the Scotland Yard. He, in company with the Sergeant, entered Rome at the heels of the troops late on Sunday evening, approaching the marble monument of Victor Emmanuel II about 1:30 a. m.

"Lieut. Gen. Pollock planned the British flag while Sgt. Marangoni simultaneously planted the Stars and Stripes upon a post of the monument which overlooked the city.

Lieut. Gen. Pollock probably will forward his flag to Prime Minister Churchill, while Sgt. Marangoni thinking that he shall say to the president according to a letter which he will forward his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Gino Marangoni, who reside at Bessemer, and his brother, Louis, who is in the service of the Marines."

Steady Advance In Italy
(The Fifth Army moving up the west coast of Italy occupied the strategic town of Grosseto 30 miles southeast of the port of Piombino, terminal for ferry lines to Elba.)

Fifth and Eighth Army units maintaining the steady momentum of their drive advanced to within less than 70 miles of Florence.
Numerous other points were taken by the Fifth along with Grosseto and its extensive airfields.

Eastward, troops of the Eighth Army, in a further rapid advance from Terni, occupied Spoleto, Trevi and Foligno. One column moved up more than a dozen miles north of Orvieto.

On the Adriatic side of the peninsula Eighth Army forces gained contact with patriot forces who were in possession of Terni. The patriots there were able to prevent the Germans from destroying bridges in the vicinity.

reprisal rather than something which can be used in furtherance of any military objective.

It now appears officials said that the weapon cannot be accurately controlled or concentrated on any important military target, but they have fallen on widely dispersed points.

The weapon, when it explodes, does damage similar to 500 kilometer bomb, but that unlike a normal shell or bomb it is far less accurate.

The Allied bombing of Pas De Calais area last night undoubtedly was for the purpose of striking at the points where the missile is set off, military sources asserted.

might well enable them to hop the

That would mean that if an American air-base was established in Alaska well up towards the pole, nearly all the capitals of the world's nations of Europe, Asia and America would be within range.

German Rocket Bomb
Second scientific development of the past 48 hours is the appearance of Germany's long-threatened rocket-bombs, fired against targets in Britain. Super-rockets have been one of mankind's dreams since the days of Leonardo Da Vinci in Renaissance Italy, hundreds of years ago. Germany's super-rockets are interesting to the scientific mind, but do not seem to be very successful.

Almost lost to sight in these amazing developments are war achievements that ordinarily would command breathless attention. On the all-important Cherbourg peninsula, where United Nations forces battle on Norman beach-heads for vital harbor of that name, American forces have captured St. Sauveur, cutting the last main railroad to the port. A drive of a few miles further and Cherbourg will be completely isolated, doomed to eventual capture, giving the allies the supply port they need for the major campaign in France that is taking shape.

Meantime in the Pacific, American amphibious forces are storming Saipan, a large island within about 1,500 miles of Japan and the vital Philippines. The capture of this strategic bit of real estate will mean a long step in Uncle Sam's war against Nippon.

exploded, but nothing on the scale or in the number which would foreshadow any serious ability to darken the sky with these missiles and devastate London or even small villages.

There is a suspicion hereabouts that the Germans have already shot their main bolt, except for Goebbels magnified propaganda.

The British are already applying various terms like "bumblebombs" and "chaserbombs" to the new weapon, and warning the public that a buzzing motor and a tail light overhead are a signal to duck into shelters.

Of Different Sizes
The robot-bombs are believed to be of different sizes, the biggest about a ton in weight. Flying at their lowest altitude they look like midsize Spitfires with a wing span of 20 feet and a length of about 18 feet.

Some reports indicate that the robot-bombs are fitted with machine guns and that they have strafed some affected districts.

According to an authentic witness, the robots have a clean-cut, streamlined chassis with a nose engine and a single propeller. The wings are apparently detached through an internal heat process before the bombs dive down.

Indiscriminate Bombing
Their only distinctive feature is a cylindrical tube raised lengthwise on the rear end of the fuselage as if the tail had been swung inward.

in other words, like a telescope stick affixed to a rifle. This tube has either rocket or jet propulsion, thus reinforcing the nose engine.

The robots crossed the channel at two to three hundred miles per hour. In many cases searchlights spotted them for targeting.

The general consensus is that they are launched from a catapulting platform, but that once in the air it is difficult to control them. They cannot pinpoint even a large target, thereby adding new proof that the Nazis are guilty of indiscriminate bombing methods.

Finnish Minister Told To Leave U. S.

Three Members Of His Staff Are
Also Given Passports; Cause
Not Revealed

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—
The nation's capital reacted with surprise and shock today to the news that Finnish Minister Heimo Procopio and three members of his staff had been given their passports and told to "leave the country at the earliest possible moment."

The action removes all top Finnish diplomats from the Washington Legation, but the State Department emphasized that a rupture of diplomatic relations is not envisaged.

Police surveillance will be maintained over the Finnish representative until they depart, Procopio and his three counselors refused comment but it was reported that they have started making preparations to leave.

In diplomatic circles, meanwhile, an effort was made to learn what the popular envoy and counselors T.
O. Vahervuori, Ruho Toivola and Risto Solanko, had committed. The State Department accused them of activities inimical to the interests of the United States. But officials declined to indicate what activities they referred to.

Ex-Soldier Admits Slaying Of Woman

NEW YORK, June 17.—(INS)—
An ex-soldier, AWOL from the Army for two years, was held today as the confessed slayer of a woman whose nude body bearing five stab wounds was found in a laundry bag by children playing in an east side lot.

Police said the confessed killer,
Michael Adesso, 27, arrested in a routine search of the neighborhood, slashed Mrs. Mary Ann Amoroso to death while the pair were drinking in his apartment Tuesday night.
He stuffed the body into the laundry sack and threw it from the roof of the five-story building.

antry were said to be within eight miles of the peninsula's west coast, virtually trapping two German divisions reported sealed off at the northern end of the peninsula.

The last remaining supply line of the Nazis from the south was said to have been cut off.

The air-borne troops, infantry and mechanized forces, led toward Barneville on the coast highway after occupying St. Sauveur Le Vicomte and cutting the last railway between Cherbourg and the rest of Normandy.

Tactical reconnaissance airmen reported that the persistent westward drive by the Americans at the same time that headquarters of Gen.
Dwight D. Eisenhower reported that leading elements were inside St.
Sauveur.

It was emphasized that the allies had not secured or consolidated their positions commanding the strategic roadway but there was no reason to suppose that the allies could be thrown out of the town after advancing on the site in strength.

A headquarters spokesman pointed out that progress farther west might be slow and difficult since the Germans had flooded the territory west of St. Sauveur.

Important Progress
The advance to St. Sauveur headquarters pointed out, was the most important progress made by the allies in the past 24 hours.

Other American units closed toward La Haye Du Puits, capture of which will cut all remaining Nazi communications through the peninsula. Front dispatches reported the Americans within four miles of La Haye while headquarters said that it was estimated the Yanks still were about six miles from the road junction.

It was pointed out that the Nazi La Haye line is very strong and the enemy holds positions on high ground, marshes surround low ground flooded by the Germans.

flank on the northern end of the Cherbourg peninsula, still remained in German hands although American forces were battling the enemy in the street.

Nazi forces also held Troam, at the left flank for which British and Canadian forces are battling.

Pierce Fighting
The fighting at Montebourg in the streets was described as extremely fierce.

Local advances were made by the allies in the face of heavy German opposition between Caumont and Tilly-sur-Seuille.

It was learned that the Germans were striving to bring up additional paratrooper units but that those arriving on the battlefield in some cases got there only after half their strength had been depleted by allied air attacks.

East of Caumont strong German attacks were beaten off.

Concentrations of German armor northeast of Caumont were bombarded by the British H. M. S. Ramilles.

Heavy fighting raged in the entire Caumont, Italy and Villers-Bocage sector where the enemy still held Tilly and Lingevres.

Attacks Beaten Off
East of Caumont in very close fighting, the Germans staged two determined attacks at Ecoville and Breville Sunday.

Both attacks were repulsed without serious loss to the enemy.

At Troam, the Germans still were making very fierce efforts which have failed. Their counter-attacks proved very costly, and now have they made any big gain, headquarters said.

South of captured Caumont, the allies advanced on a line along the Vire river, their progress supported by the shelling of warships offshore.

A summary of the situation at the northern end of the peninsula said that the allies still had not established a line along the Seine river in the push forward from the small port of Quinville.

A headquarters spokesman pointed out that no substantial weather improvement is expected until the middle of the week.

Until that time the allies cannot expect to get complete potential advantage of their overwhelming air superiority and must await more suitable conditions to exploit that power to its full scope.

Unloading conditions at the secured beaches, it was pointed out, have at no time been perfect.

Cherbourg, whose identity has not been disclosed, attempt to improve his position by moving eastward out of the Cherbourg port pocket he will find himself exposed to a crushing flank attack.

Barfleur would be the logical point of embarkation for any attempted flight from the peninsula.
But from there the Germans would have to cross the bay of the Seine past beachheads firmly held and heavily fortified and it is obvious any German attempt to weave through the pattern of Allied shipping and overwhelming air superiority in the channel would lead to a massacre.

On the other hand, should the Germans make a desperate offensive lunge from Cherbourg and Valognes against the Allied positions, they could only open up gigantic holes through which American and British troops would pour to throw a steel ring completely around the enemy.

RAID ON JAPAN ONLY START OF MANY TO COME

own fuel and other supplies over the "hump" before they could strike
Japan from their Western China bases.

As one officer of the command projected, "the supply problem for this project was in all probability the most difficult to be found anywhere in the entire world."

The problem required an airplane that could fly at great altitude for a long distance, carrying an enormous payload as well as enough fuel for a round trip. The only available plane that could fill the bill was the Super- Fortress.

Have Fuel
A number of bombers were converted into tankers, which hauled thousands upon thousands of gallons of fuel into the China bases.

Others served as transports for hauling dry cargo, supplies, spare parts, oxygen, men and equipment.

The first man credited with causing damage or injury to the enemy in the operation of a Super-Fortress as a member of the bomber command is Sgt. Harold D. Latham.

Port Worth, Tex., a rear gunner, Latham's plane was attacked by six Japanese fighters near the Indo-Burmes border last April during the first actual combat of any kind involving a B-29. One of the fighters trailed smoke as it dived out of sight, apparently damaged by the Super-Fort's tail guns. After a 25-minute scrap the Jap planes broke off.

NAZIS CONTINUE ROBOT BOMBING

Fischer Synthetic Oil Plant at Sterkrade, five miles north of Duisburg, while speedy Mosquito bombers unloaded 4,000-pound bombs on Berlin.

The attack on the Sterkrade plant was the second this week.

Returning pilots said that in counting the raid on the synthetic oil plant, which has an output of about 125,000 metric tons yearly and is one of ten such plants in the Ruhr, the Nazis used a flare which they had not seen before.

The flare, said the pilots, gives off a yellow light and hangs at a high level for about six seconds.
Then it drops automatically to several lower levels, hanging at each for a few seconds.

Pilots' Craft Used Southern England again was the target of a Nazi aerial assault in which craft with and without pilots were employed. The enemy raiders were met by heavy batteries of anti-aircraft fire.

The Nazi Agency DNB in a wireless transmission that fast German aircraft were over both Southeast England and the Thames river estuary. The Nazi report said that German airmen engaged in combat with British night fighters in which two British planes allegedly were downed.

A few nurses and patients were killed and others were injured when one robot plane crashed on a hospital in Southern England early this morning.

Some Damage and Casualties
Witnesses at various points described the reappearance of pilot-less craft which the Germans sent over in considerable numbers. The "robot" craft showed yellow lights and were shot at by tracers. In another South England area flares were dropped by planes which apparently had pilots aboard.

Fires were started by the German missiles and blast damage was reported. There were some casualties.

LARGE FORCE OF JAPS DEFENDING SAIPAN ISLAND

States landings under cover of devastating bombing, naval bombardments and rocket barrages from the coast.

Enemy resistance in the strongly held sector north of the town was held Thursday morning, with accurate navy gunfire knocking out Jap strong points.

Resume Advance
At midday, the Yanks sprang from consolidated positions, crossed the ground they had given up the night before and resumed the fight toward Garapan, Saipan's principal port, which lies four miles away on the other side of the island.

In relating the details of the progress of the battle, Admiral Nimitz's communiqué said: "our assumption that Saipan Island would be strongly held because of its strategic location in the Japanese defensive system has been proved correct. Indeed, there are upwards of two divisions of enemy troops defending Saipan."

Other Islands Hit
A previous communiqué issued yesterday by Admiral Nimitz reported a shattering carrier task force attack on the Bonin and Volcano Islands, 600 miles southeast of Tokyo—the closest naval approach to the Japanese homeland since Pearl Harbor.

Bessemer Soldier Hoists First Flag Over City Of Rome

Sgt. George V. Marangoni Unfurled
Star-Spangled Banner At
Early Morning Hour

The first American flag to be elevated over government edifices upon a European capital appeared in the City of Rome at 1:30 a. m. on the 4th of June according to a communication from Carey Loughead, news correspondent which reads in part as follows:

"Sgt. George V. Marangoni, of Bessemer, Pa. would think it an excellent idea to apprise President Roosevelt of his record.

"His officers are of the same opinion, and the flag will be sent, upon ascertaining that no other American combatant did so elevate the Stars and Stripes upon Rome before Sgt. Marangoni, to the president."

Marangoni was in a jeep used by a Lieut. Gen. J. R. Pollock who is an officer of the British police and has for the past 20 years been head of the Scotland Yard. He, in company with the Sergeant, entered Rome at the heels of the troops late on Sunday evening, approaching the marble monument of Victor Emanuel II about 1:30 a. m.

Lieut. Gen. Pollock placed the British flag while Sgt. Marangoni simultaneously planted the Stars and Stripes upon a post of the monument which overlooked the city.

Lieut. Gen. Pollock probably will forward his flag to Prime Minister Churchill, while Sgt. Marangoni is thinking what he shall say to the president, according to a letter which he will forward his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Gino Marangoni, who reside in Bessemer, and his brother, Louis, who is in the service of the Marines."

of the French generals who escaped from the Germans to join up with Gen. Charles De Gaulle in Algiers. In 1943 he was sentenced to prison for 10 years by the Germans for deserting his post at Montpelier where he had released a number of his troops to fighting against the Nazi occupation forces. He escaped to Africa a few months later, making his get away by saving the bars of his cell.

The Fifth Army moving up the west coast of Italy, occupied the strategic town of Grosseto, 30 miles southeast of the port of Pimbinio, terminal for ferry lines to Elba.

Fifth and Eighth Army units maintaining the steady momentum of their drive advanced to within less than 70 miles of Florence.

Numerous other points were taken by the Fifth along with Grosseto and its extensive airfields.

Eastward, troops of the Eighth Army, in a further rapid advance from Terni, occupied Spoleto, Trevi and Foligno. One column moved up more than a dozen miles north of Orvieto.

On the Adriatic side of the peninsula Eighth Army forces gained contact with patriot forces who were in possession of Teramo. The patriots there were able to prevent the Germans from destroying bridges in the vicinity.

reprisal rather than something which can be used in furtherance of any military objective.

It now appears, officials said, that the weapon cannot be accurately controlled or concentrated on any important military target, but they have fallen on widely dispersed points.

The weapon, when it explodes, does damage similar to 500 kilometer bomb, but that unlike a normal shell or bomb, it is far less accurate.

The Allied bombing of Pas De Calais area last night undoubtedly was for the purpose of striking at the points where the missile is set off, military sources asserted.

might well enable them to hop the Atlantic and return on their original fuel load.

That would mean that if an American air-base was established in Alaska, well up towards the pole, nearly all the capitals of the world's nations of Europe, Asia and America in the northern hemisphere would be within range.

German Rocket Bomb

Second scientific development of the past 48 hours is the appearance of Germany's long-threatened rocket-bombs, fired against targets in Britain. Super-rockets have been one of mankind's dreams since the days of Leonardo Da Vinci in Renaissance Italy, hundreds of years ago. Germany's super-rockets are interesting to the scientific-minded, but do not seem to be very successful.

Almost lost to sight in these amazing developments are war achievements that ordinarily would command breathless attention. On the all-important Cherbourg peninsula, where United Nations forces battle on Norman beach-heads for vital harbor of that name, American forces have captured St. Sauveur, cutting the last main railroad to the port. A drive of a few miles further, and Cherbourg will be completely isolated, doomed to eventual capture, giving the allies the supply port they need for the major campaign in France that is taking shape.

Meantime in the Pacific, American amphibious forces are storming Saipan, large key-island within about 1,500 miles of Japan and the vital Philippines. The capture of this strategic bit of real estate will mean a long step in Uncle Sam's war against Nippon.

exploded, but nothing on the scale or in the number which would fore-shadow any German ability to darken the sky with these missiles and devastate London or even small villages.

There is a suspicion hereabouts that the Germans have already shot their main bolt except for Goebbels' magnified propaganda.

The British are already applying various terms like "bun-bomb" and "chase-bomb" to the new weapon, and warning the public that a buzzing motor and a tail light overhead are a signal to duck into shelters.

Of Different Sizes
The robot bombs are believed to be of different sizes, the biggest about a ton in weight. Flying at their lowest altitude they look like midsize Spitfires with a wing span of 20 feet and a length of about 18 feet.

Some reports indicate that the robot bombs are fitted with machine guns and that they have strafed some affected districts.

According to an authentic witness, the robots have a clean-cut, streamlined chassis with a nose engine and a single propeller. The wings are apparently detached through an internal heat process before the bombs dive down.

Indiscriminate Bombing
Their only distinctive feature is a cylindrical tube raised lengthwise on the rear end of the fuselage as if the tail had been swung inward.

In other words, like a telephone booth, it is a tube. The tube has either rocket or jet propulsion, thus reinforcing the nose engine.

The robots crossed the channel at two to three hundred miles per hour. In many cases searchlights spotted them for targeting.

The general consensus is that they are launched from a catapulting platform, but that once in the air it is difficult to control them. They cannot pinpoint even a large target, thereby adding new proof that the Nazis are guilty of indiscriminate bombing methods.

credited with destroying a battalion of Finnish infantry on the Karelian Isthmus. Eighteen Finnish blockhouses, machine gun points, a bridge and several munition dumps were destroyed by the Russian planes.

Russian fighters and anti-aircraft fire accounted for 18 enemy planes shot down.

Two Soviet armored cutters patrolling Lake Chudovo sank one German motor torpedo boat and damaged another out of four encountered.

Russian torpedo planes operating over the gulf of Riga attacked and sank a 2,000-ton German supply ship.

Other sections of the eastern front were reported quiet, with sniper engagements and engineering activity reported southeast of Vitebsk.

A Russian rifleman was credited with shooting down a German plane with his rifle.

Finnish Minister Told To Leave U. S.

Three Members Of His Staff Are
Also Given Passports; Cause
Not Revealed

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—The nation's capital reeled with surprise and shock today to the news that Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procopé and three members of his staff had been given their passports and told to "leave the country at the earliest possible moment."

The action removes all top Finnish diplomats from the Washington Legation, but the State Department emphasized that a rupture of diplomatic relations is not envisaged.

Police surveillance will be maintained over the Finnish representatives until they depart. Procopé and his three counselors refused comment but it was reported that they have started making preparations to leave.

In diplomatic circles, meanwhile, an effort was made to learn what the popular envoy and counselors T. O. Vahervuori, Ruho Toivola and Risto Solanki, had committed. The State Department accused them of "activities inimical to the interests of the United States." But officials declined to indicate what activities they referred to.

Ex-Soldier Admits Slaying Of Woman

NEW YORK, June 17.—(INS)—

An ex-soldier, AWOL from the Army for two years, was held today as the confessed slayer of a woman whose nude body, bearing five stab wounds, was found in a laundry bag by children playing in an east side lot.

Police said the confessed killer, Michael Adesso, 27, arrested in a routine search of the neighborhood, stabbed Mrs. Ada May Amore, 40, to death while the pair were drinking in his apartment Tuesday night, stuffed the body into the laundry sack and threw it from the roof of the five-story building.

The State Election Bureau has planned to mail approximately 500,000 ballots to eligible voters among the more than 800,000 Pennsylvanians now in the armed services.

Cherbourg, whose identity has not been disclosed, attempt to improve his position by moving eastward out of the Cherbourg port pocket he will find himself exposed to a crushing flank attack.

Barfleur would be the logical point of embarkation for any attempted flight from the peninsula. But from there the Germans would have to cross the bay of the Seine past beachheads firmly held and heavily fortified and it is obvious any German attempt to weave through the pattern of Allied shipping and overwhelming air superiority in the channel would lead to a massacre.

On the other hand, should the Germans make a desperate offensive lunge from Cherbourg and Valognes against the Allied positions, they could only weaken their own flanks and open up gigantic holes through which American and British troops would pour to throw a steel ring completely around the enemy.

infantry were said to be within eight miles of the peninsula's west coast, virtually trapping two German divisions reported sealed off at the northern end of the peninsula.

The last remaining supply line of the Nazis from the south was said to have been cut off.

The air-borne troops, infantry and mechanized forces headed toward Barneville, on the coast highway, after occupying St. Sauveur Le Vi-comte and cutting the last railway between Cherbourg and the rest of Normandy.

Tactical reconnaissance airmen reported that the persistent westward drive by the Americans at the same time that headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower reported that leading elements were inside St. Sauveur.

It was emphasized that the allies had not secured or consolidated their positions commanding the strategic roadway but there was no reason to suppose that the allies could be thrown out of the town after advancing on the site in strength.

A headquarters spokesman pointed out that progress farther west might be slow and difficult since the Germans had flooded the territory west of St. Sauveur.

Important Progress

The advance to St. Sauveur, headquarters pointed out, was the most important progress made by the allies in the past 24 hours.

Other American units closed toward La Haye Du Puits, capture of which will cut all remaining Nazi communications through the peninsula. Front dispatches reported the Americans within four miles of La Haye while headquarters said the estimate was that the Yanks still were about six miles from the road junction.

It was pointed out that the Nazi La Haye line is very strong and the enemy holds positions on high ground, marshes surround low ground flooded by the Germans.

Moreover, the allied right flank on the northern end of the Cherbourg peninsula still remained in German hands although American forces were battling the enemy in the street.

Nazi forces also held Troarn at the left flank for which British and Canadian forces are battling.

Pierce Fighting

The fighting at Montebourg in the streets was described as extremely fierce.

Local advances were made by the allies in the face of heavy German opposition between Caumont and Tilly-sur-Seuille.

It was learned that the Germans were striving to bring up additional panzer units but that those arriving on the battlefield in some cases got lost after the half the strength had been depleted by allied air attacks.

East of Caen strong German attacks were beaten off.

Concentrations of German armor northeast of Caen were bombarded by the British H. M. S. Ramilles.

Heavy fighting raged in the Caumont, Italy and Villers-Bocage sector where the enemy still held Tilly and Languevies.

Attacks Beaten Off

East of Caen, in very close fighting, the Germans staged two determined attacks at Escoville and Breuille. But they were without success and beaten off with heavy losses.

At Troarn, the Germans still were making very fierce efforts which have failed. Their counter-attacks proved very costly, and nowhere have they made any big gain, headquarters said.

South of captured Carantun, the allies advanced on line along the Vire river, their progress supported by the shelling of warships offshore.

A summary of the situation at the northern end of the peninsula said that the allies still had not established a line along the Sinoie river in the push forward from the small port of Querville.

A headquarters spokesman pointed out that no substantial advances must be expected until the weather over the battle area improves. Until that time the allies cannot expect to get complete potential advantage of their overwhelming air superiority and must await more suitable conditions to exploit that power to its full scope.

Unloading conditions at the secured beaches it was pointed out, have at no time been perfect.

RAID ON JAPAN ONLY START OF MANY TO COME

own fuel and other supplies over the "hump" before they could strike Japan from their Western China bases.

As one officer of the command stated, "the supply problem for this project was in all probability the most difficult to be found anywhere in the entire world."

The problem required an airplane that could fly at great altitude for a long distance, carrying an enormous payload as well as enough fuel for a round trip. The only available plane that could fill the bill was the Super-Fortress.

Have Fuel
A number of bombers were converted into "tankers" which hauled thousands upon thousands of gallons of fuel into the China base. Others served as transports for hauling dry cargo—supplies, spare parts, oxygen, men and equipment.

The first man credited with causing damage or injury to the enemy in the operation of a Super-Fortress as a member of the bomber command is Sgt. Harold D. Lanham, Fort Worth, Tex., a rear gunner.

Lanham's plane was attacked by six Japanese fighters near the Indo-Burmese border last April during the first actual combat of any kind involving a B-29. One of the fighters trailed smoke as it dived out of sight, apparently damaged by the Super-Fort's tail guns. After a 25-minute scrap the Jap planes broke off.

Fischer Synthetic Oil Plant at Sterkade, five miles north of Duisburg, while speedy Mosquito bombers unleashed 4,000-pound bombs on Berlin.

The attack on the Sterkade plant was the second this week.

Returning pilots said that in countering their raid on the synthetic oil plant, which has an output of about 125,000 metric tons yearly, is one of ten such plants in the Ruhr. The Nazis used a flare which they had not seen before.

The flare, said the pilots, gives off a yellow light and hangs at a high level for about six seconds. Then it drops automatically to several lower levels, hanging at each for a few seconds.

Pilotless Craft Used

Southern England again was the target of the Nazi aerial assault in which craft with and without pilots were employed. The enemy raiders were met by heavy barrages of anti-aircraft fire.

The Nazi Agency DNB in a wireless transmission that fast German aircraft were over both Southeast England and the Thames river estuary. The Nazi report said that German airmen engaged in combat with British night fighters in which two British planes allegedly were downed.

A few nurses and patients were killed and others were injured when one robot plane crashed on a hospital in Southern England early this morning.

Some Damage and Casualties

Witnesses at various points described the reappearance of pilotless craft which the Germans sent over in considerable number the night before. Some of the "secret weapon" craft showed yellow lights and were shot at by tracers. In another South England area flares were dropped by planes which apparently had pilots aboard.

Fires were started by the German missiles and blast damage was reported. There were some casualties.

States landings under cover of devastating bombing, naval bombardments and rocket barrages from landing craft.

Enemy resistance in the strongly held sector north of the town was broken Thursday morning with accurate navy gunfire knocking out Jap strong points.

Resume Advance

At midday, the Yanks sprang from consolidated positions, crossed the ground they had given up the night before and resumed the fight toward Gapan, Saipan's principal port, which lies four miles away on the other side of the island.

In relating the details of the progress of the battle, Admiral Nimitz' communique said "our assumption that Saipan Island would be strongly held because of its strategic location in the Japanese defensive system has been proved correct. Preliminary estimates indicate that there are upwards of two divisions of enemy troops defending Saipan."

Other Islands Hit

A previous communique issued yesterday by Admiral Nimitz reported a shattering carrier task force attack on the Bonin and Volcano islands, 600 miles southeast of Tokyo—the closest naval approach to the Japanese homeland since Pearl Harbor.

These blows were struck Wednesday, obviously to support the American landings on Saipan, roughly 800 miles south of the Bonin group.

Carrier planes participating in the Bonin and Volcano islands raids, at the very gates to the enemy homeland, destroyed forty-seven Japanese planes and two ships, including a heavily loaded transport. In addition, six Jap planes and ten ships were damaged.

More than one hundred survivors of the sunken transport were rescued and made prisoners of war. Targets in the Bonins were Chichi Jima and Haha Jima. Thirty-three Jap planes which attempted to intercept at Chichi Jima were shot down while the raiders unloaded a rain of bombs that damaged four seaplanes, sunk a medium cargo ship and damaged four small cargo vessels, and six harbor craft.

At Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands the American war birds destroyed fourteen enemy planes on the ground and two in air combat.

Trimble, son of Mrs. Martha Trimble of 135 East Moody avenue, this city, on Saturday afternoon, June 17, at a pretty ceremony with simplicity as the keynote.

For the processional, the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" by Wagner was selected, with echoes of the same number being heard throughout the recessional, the exchange of vows. The recessional was "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn.

A congratulatory period followed, and later a reception was held in the Coral Room of The Castleton for the immediate families of the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Trimble left later in the evening on a wedding trip, and will take up residence at 407 Sheridan avenue, New Castle, upon returning.

Father's Day

It is fitting that this nation is to give a little of its attention and a little of its appreciation to father. For he is an institution as old as the human race.

The contemplative approach to him is not so sentimental as that to mothers. Possibly that is because immemorially father has stood for order and discipline and mother for the softer refinements. Father stands for discipline within the home and a solid foundation for family life.

These entail responsibilities which are not always appreciated. But father is working harder, working more and making greater sacrifices now than he customarily does. Often he is fulfilling his own duties and those of a son at a war who would normally be his right hand man.

He is carrying his business or his job through the complexities and the difficulties of the times. His brow is furrowed under the strain. He should have that word of cheer which he has well earned.

Too Many Conventions

With the war approaching a critical phase, it becomes more than ever imperative to heed the warning of railroad officials and government agencies to stay off the trains. The movement of troops, supplies and civilians who have legitimate cause to travel should not be hampered by thoughtless vacationists and "business-as-usual" individuals. Conventions are one of the worst unnecessary burdens on the railroads at the present time. Colonel J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, says: "We are obliged to report that even with the prospect of invasion and the resulting need to keep transportation lines clear, unnecessary trade shows and conventions continue to be planned. The governing officials of these organizations have neglected to take into consideration the harm these conventions inflict on war transportation efficiency."

Pacific Coast Regional ODT officials have estimated that during 1944 approximately 48,000 persons will attend about 142 conventions in only four major cities on the Pacific Coast. Convention planning is continuing in spite of the fact that ODT has said that this type of travel is especially disruptive to transportation facilities. The resulting traffic congestion is far beyond what might be expected from the small percentage of passengers that conventions add to the total number carried.

The traveling public has cooperated generously with the railroads. In return, the railroads have performed a transportation job the like of which the world has never seen. Everyone should join in this cooperative effort to get first things first on the nation's railroads—and that goes for the convention promoters.

Feints And Alarums

Nazi difficulty in massing strategic reserves for counterattack on the Western Front is evident in the developing strategy of the Allies. General Clark has chased the Germans northward through Italy to the Po Valley, and the Nazis find it necessary to keep many divisions in southern France because of the possibility of Allied penetration at that point.

Russian armies have begun a campaign to force Finland out of the war. Hitler is unable to move troops out of Poland and Norway to bolster either the Eastern or the Western fronts. General Wilson has warned the Balkans to expect trouble if they help the Germans. The implication is that Allied action is imminent in that quarter. Thus more Nazi divisions are pinned down when they are needed desperately elsewhere.

The Germans themselves have noted strong Anglo-American forces in eastern England and Scotland. Their interpretation is that these will be aimed at Belgium, Holland or Denmark. Faced by that threat, the German command is unable to put all its eggs in the Normandy front basket.

These are the feints and alarums which it was announced would accompany invasion and prevent the Germans from concentrating the strength necessary for effective defense. They are being employed now with a vengeance. And some of the feints will develop into actualities before many days have passed.

Federal Hiring Hall

Job or manpower control, at which Congress has balked, is to be put into effect on July 1 by the War Manpower Commission. It has been decided at Washington.

Under the program, job placement for the majority of American male workers—with those engaged in agriculture and domestic service the chief exceptions—would take place in accordance with a priority-referral system. This term may be Greek to the average worker, but it means that hiring for every kind of jobs will be controlled by the Federal Employment Service; and no man can shift jobs without its O.K.

This sort of employment control was authorized in the executive order establishing the WMC, although its application so far has been limited. It cannot be criticized as exceeding by forced construction the intent of the original presidential order.

On various accounts it would be better to have direct statutory authority for manpower control. But if Congress balks at a measure declared by the heads of the armed services to be urgently needed, and as Gallup polls show—approved in principle by the people, it has small reason to carp at WMC's attempt to meet the emergency.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin

Bases No Cause For Fears

Any fear that the United States has plans for postwar use of military bases in Latin America that could cause apprehension among any of the countries is as Secretary Hull states, absurd.

His forceful exposition of our policy in this connection, however, is of service in combating propaganda slurs at Yankee imperialism recurrently emanating from unfriendly sources in Latin America.

We maintain a number of military bases in Central and South America that are immensely helpful to the United Nations cause. What shall be done with them after the war must be determined by events. Some may be abandoned; retention of others may be found essential for hemispheric defense.

Whatever arrangements are made will be on the basis of mutual consent by all parties affected. That is our policy in a nutshell. If we hold on to military bases anywhere in Latin America it will be only because the country concerned will have agreed with us that such a course is desirable.

One of our neighbors says he isn't worrying about not having enough gas, at least until after the election.

A crop expert is a man who can multiply the total number of profitable acres by the number of bushels you ought to get per acre and then tell you what kind of a crop you are going to harvest.

Blood Donor Service

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Most of the things that we here at home can do to help in the struggle across the Atlantic seem pretty unrelated to that battle. But there's one way in which every American, excepting only the youngest, and the oldest, can for a little time play a direct and vital part on the battlefield.

When you go to the Red Cross to give blood, you feel a real link with our fighting men. Lying there as the little beads fill from the needle that taps the vein in your arm, you are likely to think some long thoughts.

You wonder if the blood you're giving may not, by one of those strange coincidences that life is so full of, go to help save a friend or a relative. You think of yourself as part of a living stream unending men and women all over the world.

Huge Quota

As conducted by the Red Cross at the request of the Army and the Navy, the blood donor service is big business. The quota set for this year is 5,000,000 pints. Last year the Red Cross collected 4,280,000 pints, which was more than the armed services asked for.

At the end of 1944 the total will be approximately 10,000,000 pints. It's a pint of blood for every man in the service. As in all military planning, the Army and Navy allow for every possible contingency. It's better to have too much blood plasma than too little.

No single therapy has proved so effective as the plasma transfusion. Probably no one will ever be able to estimate even roughly the number of lives saved by the stream of blood that flows from America to all the battle fronts.

The Red Cross now has thirty-five donor centers in as many cities. To surrounding communities come mobile blood donor units on regular schedule. Much of the work is on a volunteer basis. The thousands of women who give their time to have the satisfaction of knowing that almost nothing they could do could be more useful.

Rush Develops

The state of the invasion touched off a rush to the donor centers that was a heartening response to the news of battle. But what the Red Cross wants is steady customers. Weekly quotas must be filled. It is now stabilized at around 100,000 to 110,000 pints a week in accord with available laboratory facilities. Therefore the donor service works toward permanent lists of people who come back on schedule.

Only one instance has this remarkably successful volunteer service come into controversy. While the blood of Negroes is exactly the same as the blood of whites, the Red Cross collects from and distributes to the two races separately.

This separation caused sharp criticism. Here said the critics, was a chance to show that the human race is bound together by a physical unity transcending all prejudices and passions of the moment. It was wrong, the argument went, to defer to primitive prejudices.

The Red Cross replied that the separation was in deference to the wishes of those for whom the plasma is being provided; in deference, that is, to the Army and Navy. Those responsible apparently felt you could not fight a global war and at the same time cure a deep-seated prejudice.

In any event, one cannot question the decision of the Red Cross. They had the job to do. They had to go not to the primitive prejudices of this fluid vital to human life, but to hard-headed congressmen. If the Red Cross had gone counter to the prejudices of a region from which a high proportion of our fighting men have come.

Careful medical research has shown that, with the vast majority repeated blood-giving has no effect on the general health of the individual. With some it may even have a beneficial effect in stimulating regeneration of the hemoglobin.

As small a contribution as it is, you nevertheless have a feeling of pride when you leave and the Red Cross lady in her gray uniform writes another date on the back of your record of blood donations. For an hour you've been privileged to participate in the conflict on which our destiny depends.

SECRET COURAGE

Confucius, so historians say, So tried to live from day to day He'd square with rule and code and law, Though nothing but his "ceiling" saw.

On him, in silence looking down, He feared to move the ceiling down, Believing though in secret aid, He would be judged for all he did.

Do nothing, so Confucius said, A bluish upon your cheek to make, The deed upon your soul will be, Though nothing but your "ceiling" sees.

No strength, Confucius thought, so strong, As keeping self from secret wrong, Serving the moral code and law, As if the chamber ceiling saw.

Great Game Of Politics

A Clear Case

WASHINGTON, June 17.—WHEN SOME months ago Communist leader Mr. Browder, smilingly announced the abandonment by the Communists of a separate party of their own and their devotion, henceforth, to the American system of government, various cynical people made the obvious comment about the leopard and his well-known spots.

AND WHEN this pious pronouncement was followed by a certain number of American labor union errors, others pointed out that the Communists had been for the New Deal policies from the start, that they had supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1930 and 1940 when they had a party and a candidate of their own; that Mr. Browder was the original fourth term; that the plain purpose of the Communists today, working through the CIO, which they thoroughly permeate, and the American Labor party, which they have captured, is to "infiltrate" the Democratic party and strengthen themselves in the next Roosevelt administration—if there is one.

NOT THE LEAST convincing evidence of this belief are the cries of pain that come from a certain "New Dealer" who is trying to escape the unpleasant implications, makes the somewhat silly point that in 1940, when Browder was a candidate, the Communist platform denounced the Administration's foreign policy—as though that meant anything. The evidence of support is in the Browder vote that year, not in the platform. Though there had been a large increase in Communist membership since 1932, Mr. Browder polled only 46,000 in 1940, and only 40,000 in 1936 and 103,000 in 1932. Every posted politician knows that in 1940, as in 1936, Mr. Roosevelt got more Communist votes than Mr. Browder—and will Mr. Browder's cheerful acquiescence. The fact is that the New Dealer spending policy always has been dearer to the heart of the Communist than in that of the New Dealer, because, as the former leaders so frequently declared, the straight road toward their goals—one of which is economic chaos.

BUT WHAT especially grieves the New Dealers is the charge that the immediate objective of the Communists is to do to the Democratic party what they already have done to the American Labor party and the CIO. Nevertheless, that has been true for a long time. In support thereof is offered here extracts from a speech by William H. Murray, Communist leader in the state of Washington, made on October 29, 1936, and published in the Seattle Times. Mr. Murray, addressing his fellow Communists, was urging the election of the Democratic candidate for governor, whom he declared, while not an ideal candidate, will, if elected, be compelled to yield to the support which he will receive from the entire progressive movement.

IN THIS speech, Mr. Murray made these interesting statements: (1) "We are making real progress in this state but we must not be impatient. We must avail ourselves of the long-looked-for movement of the forces of the Democratic Party." (2) "The recent success of liberals and progressives at the Democratic state convention is of tremendous significance. The Democratic party adopted there the entire program of the Washington Commonwealth Federation." (3) "Only through much effort has it been possible to re-vitalize the Democratic party in this state, where it is now recognized, because of many Marxist principles, as a real progressive movement. Many of the Democratic candidates are either members of the Washington Commonwealth Federation or its parent organization, the Communist party." (4) "I recommend to all progressives and liberals in this state to register a consistent vote for the Democratic ticket. This, in fact, is what Earl Browder, our candidate for president on the Communist ticket, has repeated on many occasions." (5) "We are not going to elect the Communist ticket here or in the nation. Just as the movement is actually so much help from the chief aides of President Roosevelt, so must we in this state realize that the Marxist goal can be reached only by furthering just such progressive movements. As Communists, we must put aside our desire to achieve our program at one major stroke and co-operate with the Democratic organization in building a real people's front. Let no one divert us from our real objective."

Good Taste

By E. A. MURPHY

By FRANKIE MARKED

"Why not do a column on affected mannerisms? They seem to be more prevalent today than ever. Every one seems to be trying to emulate movie actresses."—O. C.

Answer: Many of us from time to time affect little mannerisms of speech and gesture. Those who are likely to do this should guard against this habit, which becomes monotonous and irritating with repetition.

Such things as pepping our sentences with "ah's" and "er's" employing affected diction and gesture, sometimes unfinished with such endings as "And what have you?" "all that sort of thing," "do you know what I mean?"

These annoying phrases are frequently accompanied by a proliferation of gestures and a general attitude of affectation. You will notice that this technique is adopted by those having a limited vocabulary who use such subterfuge in an effort to cover the lack of facilities for self-expression.

Don't permit yourself to be found in this group.

Question: Is it proper for a bride to wear a short afternoon dress and have her attendants in short dresses also? Or must they all wear long dresses?

Answer: If the bride will dress in informal clothes, she should have only one attendant, a maid-of-honor. Bridesmaids belong only in a wedding in which the bride dresses in the traditional bridal attire.

Question: Last night I went to church with a man friend. When the offering was taken I gave my own. Afterward he insisted that I should have let him supply it. Was I wrong?

Answer: No. You were not wrong. If he had given yours, it would not have been your offering but his.

Memories Of Pre-War Rome Are Recalled
City One Of Historic Ruins, Paintings
Visit To Vatican Is Recalled By Writer

By HELEN KASARY

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The Last Time I Saw Rome, the moon was fat and yellow over the Colosseum. The moon was also disinterested and cast a pale glance at our tale of touristish out-sightseeing among the ancient ruins of the Imperial City. Poor old dear, the Moon! Luna here had seen so many sights during the days of the same Colosseum. Caesars and lions and Christian martyrs and yelling multitudes with thumbs turned down, triumphant heroes, clinging slaves, marble grandeur.

And now what did this era of her orbit reflect? Some crumbling arches toppled down, weeds grown as high as bushes, three shabby American tourists in tan slacks, coats and a little of alloy, cats, wild and willing and half-starved with never a helpless Christian captive to draw on.

Tourists Gnawed On. It occurred to me that the cats might take to gnawing on tourists. Especially American tourists. It was the custom of Italy and all other foreign countries to gnaw on American tourists. The cats had the custom of all countries to gnaw on American tourists. Only now we call the habit "end-leas."

Anyhow, my touristish friends of 10 years ago, and I too, were afraid of the Colosseum. We thought they might be the ghosts of the poor creatures slaughtered to make those old-time Roman holidays. So we hurried out of the Colosseum. The bright day. Get us a cab as soon as we could half one and bounced home behind a wobbly horse to the Hotel de Russie, where we were staying.

The last time I saw Rome we went, of course, to the opera. On the night of the 15th, the said nothing was left but a box for this gala evening for the Great Duce would be a special guest.

Was it not the Name Day of the mighty Mussolini? All yes it was, indeed so. The American ladies were most fortunate to be able to be there for such a celebration. This was why it would be necessary to charge so high a tariff—more than had at any time been estimated. Ah, gratias, signoras.

If Duce Was Here. The opera was "Faust." Naturally, the hero of the celebration was "Il Duce." He was magnificent in glory, theatrical in manner. He smelled a red rose during 89 scenes and four intermissions. Somewhat in the nature of Ferdinand, the gambel bull, who loved to sniff flowers.

The two other American ladies and I introduced ourselves to the Great Man during one intermission. Such behavior was brave, of course. But I noticed that when we acted and talked "American" the supercilious smile in his best pre-Hitler way.

Naturally we did the art galleries and we must have done a thousand churches the Last Time I Saw Rome. I love churches, particularly when there aren't any people in them. I don't care for medium-sized churches, only cathedrals and chapels. Most of the churches of Rome were my kind of church, so I had a very happy time.

A helpful American Cardinal had got us an invitation to meet the ultimate Marxist goal. Of the recent success of liberals and progressives at the Democratic state convention is of tremendous significance. The Democratic party adopted there the entire program of the Washington Commonwealth Federation.

Monks in long robes, held at the waist with cords clanking with heavy crosses, switched by on slipped feet. We clasped the rosaries we had bought in the blessed, in camp, nervous flutters and waited our turn for the presentation.

His Holiness was gentle and friendly. He seemed small in his broad-clothed garments. We knelt to kiss the ring that is the symbol of the earthly head of the Roman Catholic Church. Said a vague little prayer because this man before us typified the befuddled human being's struggle to reach godliness. And felt grateful and almost pure in heart in this benign presence.

I can't imagine the Holy City noise with tanks and bombers and bloody with hate and fear. Peace and romance lived there—the Last Time I Saw Rome.

His Holiness was gentle and friendly. He seemed small in his broad-clothed garments. We knelt to kiss the ring that is the symbol of the earthly head of the Roman Catholic Church. Said a vague little prayer because this man before us typified the befuddled human being's struggle to reach godliness. And felt grateful and almost pure in heart in this benign presence.

Contribution by labor unions to the political campaigns of candidates seeking federal offices are barred by law. But that doesn't deter the C. I. O. boss. He is setting up his organization in Congressional Districts throughout the country, making the campaigns virtually away from those candidates whom he favors and sparing no effort in his attempts to smear their opponents. Probably no money goes directly to the individual candidates official fund. But the effect is the same and it is an evil effect.

If continued, and with the swollen treasuries of the C. I. O. unions available as a source of revenue, the Hillman outfit could go a long way toward aiding in the election to Congress a group which Representative Rankin of Mississippi described as doodlebugs, who would jump up and vote as Hillman wanted them to vote whenever he removed the cover.

The whole setup and all of its corrupt possibilities should undergo a thorough investigation by Congress. And it shouldn't be delayed until after election. It should start now.

New B-29 Bombers Require Aluminum In Great Amounts

Report: 50,000,000 Pounds Of Aluminum Needed For Building Of 1,000 B-29's

PITTSBURGH, June 17.—(INS)—The Army's new Boeing Super Flying Fortress, used in blasting Japan's war industries, uses approximately two and one-half times as much aluminum as the B-17 or the B-24. It was disclosed today.

In 1939, the entire aluminum production of this country was sufficient to permit the building of only 6,500 of these planes; officials of the Aluminum Company of America reported.

Alcoa engineers disclosed that in the construction of the B-29, one of the strongest aluminum alloys ever to emerge from the laboratories. This alloy, known as 24S-RP, is heat treated and cold worked by special processes. The alloy is said to be as strong as structural steel.

More than 50,000,000 pounds of aluminum will be required to make 1,000 of these new planes and Alcoa officials disclosed the Army has already ordered several times that number.

Regular meeting of the New Castle County Historical Society will be held Tuesday at noon in The Castleton. The speaker will be Dr. Gilbert H. Taylor, professor of language and history, who will speak on the subject "The History of Sicily and the Mediterranean."

ROY F. CONWAY, Secretary.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

illuminating. They prove that the infiltration of the Democratic party has been a settled and consistent Communist policy for eight years. The facts attest the progress made and make it clear the 1944 effort is the strongest yet made with the best prospects. It is true of course, that the Russians are our valued allies and we intend to live amicably with them after the fighting is over, but that should not blind us to the beautiful "boring-from-within" game, which American Communists have been playing here for eight years, and the degree of success which they have achieved.

PERHAPS, it is all right to regard this lightly and to dismiss those who do not so regard it as having political nightmares. Nevertheless these facts cannot be disputed—to wit, that in some states, like Washington, the Communists have successfully infiltrated the Democratic party, that in New York they control the American Labor party, which claims to hold the balance of political power and polls as high as 400,000 votes, that they have great influence in the CIO, whose leaders are closely linked personally and politically with Mr. Roosevelt, that Browder, the Communist leader, is the original fourth term, and a Roosevelt re-election would rejoice every Communist in the country. Add those things up and read again Communism's 1936 speech, and then see what the answer is. Maybe it is nothing to create a panic but it looks like a clear case. Certainly, it seems extremely sapish to ignore the facts and refuse to understand what these smooth operators are about.

First Mass For Rev. Fr. John Bober

Newly Ordained Priest To Offer Solemn High Mass In SS. Philip-James Church Sunday

The Rev. Fr. John A. Bober, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bober, 1711 South Jefferson street, who was ordained in the holy priesthood June 11, at St. Vincent's Archabbey, Latrobe, Pa., will celebrate his first solemn high mass Sunday, June 18, at 11 o'clock, in SS. Philip and James church, this city.

In the afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock, Father Bober will receive guests at the home of his parents, and also during the evening. It is expected that his many friends and acquaintances will attend.

Father Bober received his Bachelor of Arts degree from St. Mary's College, Orchard Lake, Mich., in 1940, and later entered St. Vincent's Seminary to continue his studies for the priesthood.

Following many years of hard study, Father Bober achieved his goal on June 11, by being ordained into the holy priesthood. On Sunday, he will experience a great thrill to offer his first mass in his parish church, at SS. Philip and James church—in his home town.

Bond Sellers To Redouble Efforts

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—(INS)—Pennsylvania's 135,000 volunteer solicitors will make an extra effort to promote observance of Father's Day tomorrow with war bond purchases to help reach the state's $442,000,000 quota for individuals in the Fifth War Loan campaign.

There is no better way of honoring fighting fathers than by putting fighting dollars into war bonds, declared G. Ruhland Rebmann, Jr., chairman of the Pennsylvania War Finance committee.

Rebmann announced an additional $3,800,000 in individual sales cleared since the Federal Reserve bank through Thursday, bringing the total to $51,932,616 or 11.75 per cent of the quota.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

In the clinic who sought to justify a sexual offense, however insignificant. The same hardened delinquent who is seen to face the consequences of a vicious general assault or burglary with complacency, defiance or indifference, will blush, flounder for answers and be severely distraught when faced with a charge of the most trivial sexual offense.

This, he believes, is a strong argument for the juvenile sex offender to be haled into court to face the matter squarely before his parents and the public provided he thereafter has proper psychiatric treatment and constructive guidance by his parents. Unfortunately, parents, in self-defense, are inclined to keep the child out of court. If possible, Dr. Dostoy says that orthodox psychoanalytic treatment of the juvenile sex offender should be avoided. As readers of this column must recall, I have frequently advised that after a child in the home has been dealt with in connection with some wrong-doing, the matter should never be brought up again. In like manner, Dr. Dostoy advises that parents, probation officers and social workers refrain entirely unless warranted by circumstances from any reference to the sex offense in later contacts with the boy.

Usually the juvenile sex offender needs change of neighborhood and more outlets for enjoying awareness of success at home and school, opportunities for instruction in the arts and crafts, music, boxing, etc., aiming at re-establishing a sense of

My special bulletin, "Undesirable Sex Habits in Children" may be had for postage in the usual way. Among the preventive measures suggested are adequate facilities in play and recreation, as regular spending allowance, and protection of children from unsupervised persons. Children should be taught not to accept favors or money from strange men, not to visit strange men's homes, or so-called "clubs," or gang dens, nor to loiter on corners or in candy store hangouts, not to trust abnormal interest shown them on the part of adults. "Children should not be left unsupervised in the care of a neighbor's or relative's adolescent boy." Parents should not

Parents, teachers and everybody else interested in the teenage boy should read this book.

Report 50,000,000 Pounds Of Aluminum Needed For Building Of 1,000 B-29's

PITTSBURGH, June 17.—(INS)—The Army's new Boeing Super Flying Fortress, used in blasting Japan's war industries, uses approximately two and one-half times as much aluminum as the B-17 or the B-24, it was disclosed today.

In 1939, the entire aluminum production of this country was sufficient to permit the building of only 6,500 of these planes, officials of the Aluminum Company of America reported.

Today, however, 96 per cent of the country's aluminum capacity goes into the production of airplanes.

Aluminum production has been stepped up some 700 per cent and enough aluminum is available to manufacture B-29's by the thousands if necessary.

Alcoa engineers disclosed that into the construction of the B-29 goes one of the strongest aluminum alloys ever to emerge from the laboratories. This alloy, known as 24S-RT, is heat treated and cold worked by special processes. The alloy is said to be as strong as structural steel.

More than 50,000,000 pounds of aluminum will be required to make 1,000 of these new planes and, Alcoa officials disclosed, the Army has already ordered several times that number.

illuminating. They prove that the infiltration of the Democratic party has been a settled and consistent Communist policy for eight years. The facts attest the progress made and make it clear the 1944 effort is the strongest yet made and with the best prospects. It is true, of course, that the Russians are our valued allies and we intend to live amicably with them after the fighting is over, but that should not blind us to the beautiful "boring-from-within" game which American Communists have been playing here for eight years, and the degree of success which they have achieved.

PERHAPS, it is all right to regard this lightly and to dismiss those who do not so regard it as having political nightmares. Nevertheless, these facts cannot be disputed—(a) that in some states, like Washington, the Communists have successfully infiltrated the Democratic party; that in New York, they control the American Labor party, which claims to hold the balance of political power and polls as high as 400,000 votes, that they have great influence in the CIO, whose leaders are closely linked, personally and politically, with Mr. Roosevelt; that Browder, the Communist leader, is the original fourth term, and a Roosevelt re-election would rejoice every Communist in the country. Add those things up and send again Communist Murray's 1938 speech and then see what the answer is. Maybe it is nothing to create a panic but it looks like a clear case. Certainly it seems extremely sapish to ignore the facts and refuse to understand what these smooth operators are about.

First Mass For Rev. Fr. John Bober

Newly Ordained Priest To Offer Solemn High Mass In SS. Philip-James Church Sunday

The Rev. Fr. John A. Bober, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bober, 1711 South Jefferson street, who was ordained in the holy priesthood June 11, at St. Vincent's Archabbey, Latrobe, Pa., will celebrate his first solemn high mass Sunday, June 18, at 11 o'clock in SS. Philip and James church in this city.

In the afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock, Father Bober will receive guests at the home of his parents, and also during the evening. It is expected that his many friends and acquaintances will attend.

Father Bober received his Bachelor of Arts degree from St. Mary's College, Orchard Lake, Mich., in 1940, and later entered St. Vincent's Seminary to continue his studies for the priesthood.

Following many years of hard study, Father Bober achieved his goal, on June 11, by being ordained into the holy priesthood. On Sunday, he will experience a great thrill to offer his first mass in his parish church, at SS. Philip and James church—in his home town.

Bond Sellers To Redouble Efforts

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—(INS)—Pennsylvania's 135,000 volunteer solicitors will make an extra effort to promote observance of Father's Day tomorrow with war bond purchases to help reach the state's $442,000,000 quota for individuals in the Fifth War Loan campaign.

There is no better way of honoring fighting fathers than by putting fighting dollars into war bonds, declared G. Ruhland Rebmann Jr., chairman of the Pennsylvania War Finance committee.

Rebmann announced an additional $3,808,082 in individual sales cleared by the Federal Reserve bank through Thursday, bringing the total to $51,932,616 or 11.75 per cent of the quota.

The same hardened delinquent who is seen to face the consequences of a vicious general assault or burglary with complacency, defiance or indifference, will blush, flounder for answers and be severely distraught when faced with a charge of the most trivial sexual offense.

This, he believes, is a strong argument for the juvenile sex offender to be haled into court, if possible, the matter squarely before his parents and the public provided he thereafter has proper psychiatric treatment and constructive guidance by his parents. Unfortunately, parents, in self-defense, are inclined to keep the child out of court, if possible.

Dr. Doshay says that orthodox psychoanalytic treatment of the juvenile sex offender should be avoided.

As readers of this column must recall, I have frequently advised that after a child in the home has been dealt with in connection with some wrong-doing, the matter should never be brought up again.

In like manner, Dr. Doshay advises that parents, probation officers and social workers refrain entirely, unless warranted by circumstances, from any reference to the sex offense in later contacts with the boy.

Usually the juvenile sex offender needs change of neighborhood and more outlets for enjoying awareness of success at home and school, opportunities for instruction in the arts and crafts, music, boxing etc., aiming at re-establishing a sense of stability, usefulness, self-respect and appreciation of the rights, feelings and property of others.

My special bulletin, "Undesirable Sex Habits in Children," may be had for postage in the usual way.

Among the preventive measures suggested are adequate facilities in play and recreation, a regular spending allowance, and protection of children from unsupervised persons.

"Children should be taught not to accept favors or money from strange men, not to visit strange men's homes, or so-called 'chubby' or 'pang' dens, nor to idle on corners or in candy store hangouts, not to trust abnormal interest shown them on the part of adults."

"Children should not be left unsupervised in the care of a neighbor's or relative's adolescent boy. Parents should not

Parents, teachers and everybody else interested in the teen-age boy should read this book.

Chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation J. Edgar Hoover reports that last year a major crime occurred every 12 minutes, a burglary every two minutes, a larceny every 39 seconds, and an automobile was stolen every three minutes.

Bible School Closes At Bethany Lutheran

Two weeks of vacation Bible school at Bethany Lutheran church came to a close Friday afternoon, leaving the students at given an opportunity to examine the display of handwork made by the children.

The formal closing of the school will take place Sunday evening at 7:30 in the church school room when the children will present an entertainment and awards will be given to those who have a perfect attendance record for the two weeks session.

The main feature of the entertainment is a play, "Living With Our Lord," written by the junior class as one of their projects. Following the play, visitors will be given an opportunity to examine the display of handwork made by the children.

New B-29 Bombers Require Aluminum In Great Amounts

Report 50,000,000 Pounds Of Aluminum Needed For Building Of 1,000 B-29's

PITTSBURGH, June 17.—(INS)—The Army's new Boeing Super Flying Fortress, used in blasting Japan's war industries, uses approximately two and one-half times as much aluminum as the B-17 or the B-24, it was disclosed today.

In 1939 the entire aluminum production of this country was sufficient to permit the building of only 6,500 of these planes, officials of the Aluminum Company of America reported.

Today, however, 90 per cent of the country's aluminum capacity goes into the production of airplanes.

Aluminum production has been stepped up some 700 per cent and enough aluminum is available to manufacture B-29's by the thousands if necessary.

Alcoa engineers disclosed that into the construction of the B-29 goes one of the strongest aluminum alloys ever to emerge from the laboratories. This alloy, known as 24S-RT, is heat treated and cold worked by special processes. The alloy is said to be as strong as structural steel.

Congress Recess May Start June 24

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—A congressional recess from June 24 until August 1 appeared probable.

Democratic Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley, Ky., said he hoped such a program can be worked out.

The recess is contingent upon the disposing of appropriations and other important bills.

House leaders advised Barkley that they wished to recess until September 1.

Among the preventive measures suggested are adequate facilities in play and recreation, a regular spending allowance, and protection of children from unscrupulous persons. "Children should be taught not to accept favors or money from strange men, not to visit strange men's homes, or so-called 'clubs'.

or in candy store hangouts, not to trust abnormal interest shown them on the part of adults. "Children should not be left unsupervised in the care of a neighbor's or relative's adolescent boy. Parents should not

Parents, teachers and everybody else interested in the teen-age boy should read this book.

Chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation J. Edgar Hoover reports that last year a major crime occurred every 12 minutes, a burglary every two minutes, a larceny every 39 seconds, and an automobile was stolen every three minutes.

Yanks Becoming Acclimated In French Villages

By WILLIAM WADE
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WHILE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 16—(Delayed)—While men and supplies are being moved steadily ashore from the great invasion fleet, Americans on the beachhead are becoming acclimated to France today.

During a lengthy two-day tour of American-held territory this correspondent found GIs making themselves at home in everything from silk trenches to villas and taking over German positions and adapting them to their own use. Hitchhiking through a dozen French villages, scores of demolished houses where Germans had made their stand and been driven out by shells, bombs and stout-hearted infantry could be seen.

Isigny Typical
The town of Isigny was typical with its main street a mass of cluttered rubble and its unsightly side streets, a bustling business with soldiers frequenting cafes, bars, shops and other civilian luxuries.

The GIs have already acquired a taste for red and white wine, cognac and calvados, a cider with a close relationship to "Jersey lightning."

A classic cameo of beachhead life was formed by an MP seated at the base of a statue in the center of Isigny. In the midst of debris completely surrounded by shattered houses, he was also surrounded by French children.

Surrounding Language Barrier
The MP had an army issue French phrase book, teaching the children English and learning French. He used both the book and the sign language while the children ate GI chocolate and eagerly chewed gum.

Another vignette of beachhead life was provided by the Marquis De Balleury, who read calmly in a spacious room of his chateau only a few miles behind the front while his housekeeper answered questions for a group of officers and correspondents.

Only a few days before the Germans had used the chateau as an evacuation hospital, bringing in 400 wounded.

Meanwhile, a group of colored troops on the grounds outside were cleaning up hastily made graves left by the Germans in order to identify the dead and discover if any Americans were among them.

Farmers Urged To Preserve Milkweed

Milk Weed Floss Is Needed As Substitute For Kapok In Life Preservers

You may save a life if you leave your milk weed plants stand this year, said Clyde A. Zehner, chairman of the agricultural adjustment agency's state committee for Pennsylvania, today in exhorting farmers to preserve the source of supply for buoyant life preservers.

When the Japs captured Java, said Mr. Zehner, our source of Kapok was shut off and we have thus far been dependent upon reserve supply held in this country and on route by ship to this country when Java fell. Kapok is a silky seed pod fiber which grows in many parts of the world, but Java was about the only place where plantations had developed a commercial supply. It has been generally used in this country for mattresses and life preservers for many years.

Milk weed floss has been found to be an excellent substitute for Kapok in life preservers. As soon as the seed pods are ripe, millions of school children throughout America will be enlisted in the campaign for gathering and curing milk weed floss. The government will furnish mesh onion sacks for the curing of these pods. Instructions have been distributed among school children throughout the state so that the campaign may be fully under way when schools open this fall. The floss furnished by two bushel bags of milk weed pods will fill one life jacket.

French Underground Doing Much Work

Full-Scale Campaign Of Sabotage Since D-Day Has Greatly Harassed Germans

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 17 (INS). Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced in a special communique tonight that the army of the French underground has staged a full-scale campaign of sabotage against the Nazis since the hour of invasion struck.

The patriots have concentrated upon the enemy's trained communication lines. Eisenhower disclosed and already at least 70 locomotives—an average of nearly seven a day—have been destroyed since D-Day. It is reported that both road and rail traffic is completely stopped in the valley of the Rhone, the official bulletin said.

Canals also have been hit, with at least four put out of action over varying lengths and by different means. In one case, four consecutive locks were destroyed.

Lieut. McClurg Is Now Captain

Since his return to his home here after twice being shot by the Japs in the southwest Pacific by Lieut. Robert McClurg, Marine flier, it has been learned that he was recently promoted to the rank of captain as a result of his notable service against the Japs.

Roosevelt Scores Oil Control Bill

But President Signs Measure Only Because Of Need Of War For More Oil

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—President Roosevelt strongly criticized Congress today for adoption of a law giving the legislative bodies control over the production of oil in the Elk Hills Reserve in California.

Although he signed the measure, the President said that it was "a logical assumption of executive functions" and was approved by him only because of the need of increased oil production for war purposes.

From Planes To Plowshares Means A Need For Speed
Some day this war will be over --- soon we all hope --- and when it is over --- there will be a reconversion of industry back to a peacetime basis.
That's when speed will count in getting vital materials to the plants --- and finished products to market --- that's when the flexibility and delivery speed of motor trucks will be needed to get production up --- fast --- and to keep it at top efficiency.
The motor truck industry has proven it's value in war time production --- peace time will be another challenge to it's ingenuity --- but the industry will be ready.
When the world changes over from planes to plowshares --- from booby traps to baby carriages --- from gun powder to face powder --- it is going to take a lot of know how in transportation but the motor truck industry will be ready to meet the challenge.

But President Signs Measure Only Because Of Need Of War For More Oil

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—President Roosevelt strongly criticized Congress today for adoption of a law giving the legislative bodies control over the production of oil in the Elk Hills Reserve in California.

Although he signed the measure, the President said that it was "legislative assumption of executive functions" and was approved by him only because of the need of increased oil production for war purposes.

From Planes To Plowshares Means A Need For Speed
Some day this war will be over --- soon we all hope --- and when it is over --- there will be a reconversion of industry back to a peacetime basis.
That's when speed will count in getting vital materials to the plants --- and finished products to market --- that's when the flexibility and delivery speed of motor trucks will be needed to get production up --- fast --- and to keep it at top efficiency.
The motor truck industry has proven it's value in war time production --- peace time will be another challenge to it's ingenuity --- but the industry will be ready.
When the world changes over from planes to plowshares --- from booby traps to baby carriages --- from gun powder to face powder --- it is going to take a lot of know how in transportation but the motor truck industry will be ready to meet the challenge.

Ten Years Ago Baer Hammered Carnera Around

Arthur Donovan Stopped
Bout In 11th Round And Maxie Won Heavyweight Title

BAER GREAT AT CERTAIN TIMES

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Writer)
CHICAGO, June 17.—(INS)—It couldn't have been 10 years ago. There must be some mistake. A lot of things have happened, yes. Hitler, the fall of France, Dunkirk, the might and majesty of England tottering on its pedestal, Pearl Harbor and now the invasion. . . they've been the kind of things that annihilate distance and make a fool of time.

Yet, through it all, the events of that boisterous, almost bacchanal evening when Max Baer took the heavy-weight championship by repeatedly blowing down the great, lumbering Carnera stand forth clear and sharp and vivid.

Thirteen times in 11 rounds, the big, O.K. was stretched like something that's been bludgeoned in the stockyards, landing with a galumph that must have been felt on the seismograph at Fordham University five miles away. Yet each time he re-assembled all the unravellings of 263 pounds and arose in one piece until Arthur (the befuddled) Donovan called for a stay of execution in the eleventh round.

Arthur (the discomposed) Donovan also seemed to have called for a stay of execution in the tenth round. But that was a natural misunderstanding brought on by the fact that Carnera lay, hopeless and helpless, in the ropes and Baer had been sent to his own corner. However, Arthur then did a very singular thing.

Carnera had enough. He helped Carnera to his feet and motioned the fight to continue. It was Carnera who very sensibly didn't continue once the eleventh round was well under way, turning to Donovan and saying something that caused the former to act instantly.

But that's getting ahead of the story, which properly begins three days in advance with commissioner Bill Brown, publicity announcing that Baer "was a bum."

Maybe he was, on occasions, but with Carnera, he really hit the capital prize of an odd, contradictory career. He threw less than 20 punches that night, and scored 13 knockdowns. He couldn't miss the big chin.

Baer always played "comical" but he was nobody's simpleton. He was fixing to get you set from a yard and a half, so he could head you with his booby-booby punch.

Baer Always Clinging
He did it all the live-long night with Carnera and had the time of his life, as evidenced by the first knockdown. . . both men went to the floor with this one. Carnera with the force of the punch, Baer with the force of his effort. Briefly, about 485 pounds of man spread out in a repellent sprawl.

And, as they lay there momentarily side by side, Baer is said to have shouted to the other:

"Last one up is a sissy!"

But only succeeded in being twice as silly.

ZOUP SOUPERS WIN

The Grimes Street Zoup Soupers defeated the South Side Aces Thursday morning at Oyster Park field. Morale, Zank and Prater did the heaviest hitting for the winners, with Taylor best for the losers with three hits. Morale was the winning pitcher and De Mascon the loser. scored several victories when they invaded Farrell several nights ago. Among the pugilists prominent in amateur ranks who were defeated was Berle Charly. It required less than two rounds for Charles Busa, a local Milwaukee, to knock out Charly at 150. Berle has fought here several times. Tim Dolan of Chicago, another soldier, beat Eddie May at 135. Gene Angelucci, Uniontown, another soldier, scored a TKO at 124. In the second round, Ozzie Peguese, Dom Docquis, also a soldier, Milwaukee, won from Bob Hughes of Newton Falls at 135. Among the all-civilian battles, Glenn Polvinsky, Newton Falls, defeated Joe Glisando, Ellwood City at 147 and Carl Sabotin, Warren, O., outpointed Joe Magliocco, Ellwood City at 126.

Softball Toss In River Expensive

McKEESPORT, Pa., June 17.—(INS)—The softball itself was only worth $1.75 but it cost George Marhaki $10 to toss it into the Youngsberry river.

When the ball rolled near him during a softball game between the younger teams, Marhaki, 34, picked it up and tossed it into the river. What he didn't know until after his action was that Juvenile Court Officer William Halcher was managing one of the contesting teams.

Fair Or Foul

By LAWTON CARVER
(Central Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, June 17.—There is no telling when or where lightning will strike or whether it will strike twice.

The price against Vic Ghezzi leading in the current Red Cross open golf championship at New Rochelle would be some utterly prohibitive figure and similar odds could be had against Henry Armstrong knocking out Al (Bummy) Davis in two rounds. If any one had the temerity to play those two as a parlay for a fairly reasonable sum they would never have to work again.

Ghezzi shot a 67 over New Rochelle's Wykagyl course Thursday in his first round over the layout. He had never before even so much as unlumbered a puller there. His score led Byron Nelson a red-hot by two strokes.

Armstrong, massaged Davis at Madison Square Garden Thursday night. The tough young man from Brooklyn who has belted out more than 40 opponents was a mere setup for an aged and uncertain veteran. As a matter of fact, if there was to be a knockout in the early rounds, Davis was expected to score it, for he has done most of his damage inside of five heats.

Carver Saw Both
Having been a spectator at both Ghezzi's almost sensational round and Armstrong's sudden kayo, I was coming home wondering whether anything makes any sense any more. That Ghezzi positively could shoot a 67 under pressure, but he did, and Armstrong can't knock out a teacup out of young aunts Emma's hand by this time, but he did get rid of Davis.

Ghezzi is a long lean sergeant in the army now. He has been a threat at times but never a real hot contender in the big golf fixtures.

Armstrong has been washed up for years and he came back to New York more or less by surrender. He had won 11 of 12 bouts around the country on this latest of his comeback campaigns and loomed as a natural for Davis in these times when there is a shortage of pugilistic help in the arenas.

He was a natural all right, a natural earthquake insofar as Davis was concerned. The latter never had much of a chance once Armstrong began to gun.

It was a good fight, but not as good as Ghezzi's victory over par. After an outward 37, Ghezzi came home in 30 and but for a missed six-footer and a missed eight-footer would have shot an inward 28.

As I was saying, there is a parlay for you—Armstrong and Ghezzi.

OCEAN SWELL WINS
AT EPSOM DOWNS
EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 17.—Lord Roseberry's Ocean Swell, starting at 28-1, took the classic Derby in its fourth wartime running today.

The Aga Khan's Teheran, starting at 8-1, was second and Walter Hutchinson's Happy Landing, 22-1, was third.

Ocean Swell triumphed by a neck while only a short head separated Teheran and Happy Landing. Out of the money was Mr. David Willis' Growing Confidence, the 9-2 favorite at post time.

OCTOPUS FISHING THRILLS

On the list of postwar projects perhaps is octopus fishing. If you're a fisherman with a good lung capacity and an uncontrollable itch for the "big game" of the deep, you could do worse than tackle this unique form of underwater fishing. Henry M. Hedges, Chicago sportsman and contractor, is an amateur authority on it. "Contrary to popular conception, stalking the octopus in his coral lair isn't exactly what you'd call dangerous, but you can get some nasty nips from the octopus' beak-like mouth."

Down Goes Hedges
Off the shores of Port Bora in the Society group, Hedges went with a Polyneesian to octopus fish. The native went down and came up with one, then Hedges dived.

"I thrust the spear daintily into his cave, then jiggled it around to beat the band—and out he came, swarming all over me! I made a jab and missed. I decided it was time to come up for some air."

"That was getting acrid," he said. "No matter. You go try again. I was go again or lose face. He was still grinning as I turned it over in my mind—and that made up my mind for me. I sucked in some air, exhaled, and plunged back down into the green underwater forest."

"I had him!"
"He was waiting for me. I jiggle the spear at him again—and, whoosh! Here he was again, electing this camouflage."

"I felt the spear bite into the pup's mass, and then the brute started wrapping his tentacles around me. I never," he shuddered, "felt anything like those slimy, creepy tentacles. Brother, if you haven't had an octopus tentacle around you, you haven't lived yet."

But I had him. I followed through on my first job by needing him through the eyes the way Turl

Ten Years Ago Baer Hammered Carnera Around

Bout In 11th Round And Maxie Won Heavyweight Title

BAER GREAT AT CERTAIN TIMES

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Writer)
CHICAGO, June 17.—(INS)—It couldn't have been 10 years ago. There must be some mistake. A lot of things have happened, yes, Hitler, the fall of France, Dunkirk, the might and majesty of England tottering on its pedestal, Pearl Harbor and now the invasion... they've been the kind of things that annihilate distance and make a fool of time.

Yet, through it all, the events of that boisterous, almost bawdy evening when Max Baer took the heavy-weight championship by repeatedly blowing down the great lumox Carnera, stand forth clear and sharp and vivid.

Thirteen times in 11 rounds the big "Oaf" was stretched like something that's been bludgeoned in the stockyards, landing with a gale of blows that have been felt on the seismograph at Fordham University five miles away. Yet each time he re-assembled all the unravellings of 265 pounds and arose in one piece until Arthur (the befuddled) Donovan called for a stay of execution in the eleventh round.

Arthur (the discomposed) Donovan also seemed to have called for a stay of execution in the tenth round. But that was a natural misunderstanding, brought on by the fact that Carnera lay, hopeless and helpless, in the ropes and Baer had been sent to his own corner. However, Arthur then did a very singular thing.

Carnera Had Enough
He helped Carnera to his feet and motioned the fight to continue. It was Carnera who very sensibly didn't continue once the eleventh round was well under way, turning to Donovan and saying something that caused the former to act, instantly.

But that's getting ahead of the story, which properly begins three days in advance with commissioner Bill Brown, publicity announcing that Baer "was a bum."

Maybe he was, on occasions, but with Carnera, he really hit the capital prize of an oddly contradictory career. He threw less than 20 punches that night, and scored 13 knockdowns. He couldn't miss the guy's chin.

Baer always "played" comical, but he was nobody's simpleton. He was fixing to get you set from a yard and a half, so he could behead you with his boola-boola punch.

Baer Always Clenching
He did it all the live-long night with Carnera and had the time of his life, as evidenced by the first knockdown. Baer went to the floor with this one; Carnera from the force of the punch. Baer with the force of his effort. Briefly about 485 pounds of man spread out in a repellant sprawl.

And, as they lay there momentarily side by side, Baer is said to have shouted to the other:

"Last one up is a leech!"

When it was all over, somebody asked Commissioner Brown about the "bum" thing. And flippantly he tried to bluster his way out of a bad situation by saying they were "two bums."

But only succeeded in being twice as silly.

scored several victories when they invaded Farrell several nights ago. Among the pugilistic prominent in amateur ranks who were defeated was Berle Charity. It required less than two rounds for Charles Busalacci of Milwaukee to knock out Charity, at 150. Berle has fought here several times. Tim Dolton of Chicago, another soldier, beat Eddie May, at 135. Gene Angelucci, Uniontown, another soldier, scored a TKO at 124 in the second round. Also a soldier, Milwaukee, won from Bob Hughes of Newton Falls at 135. Among the all civilian battles, Glenn Dolvin, Newton Falls, defeated Joe Gisando, Ellwood City at 147 and Carl Sabotin, Warren, O., outboxed Joe Magliocca, Ellwood City at 126.

The price against Vic Ghezzi leading in the current Red Cross open golf championship at New Rochelle will be some utterly prohibitive figure, and similar odds could be had against Henry Armstrong knocking out Al (Bunny) Davis in two rounds. If any one had the tenacity to play those two as a parlay for a fairly reasonable sum they would never have to work again.

Ghezzi shot a 67 over New Rochelle's Wykagyl course Thursday in his first round over the layout. He had never before even so much as unlabeled a putter there. His score led Byron Nelson, a red-hot by two strokes.

Armstrong massaged Davis at Madison Square Garden Thursday night. The tough young man from Brooklyn who has belted out more than 40 opponents was a mere setup for an aged and uncertain veteran. As a matter of fact, if there was to be a knockout in the early rounds Davis was expected to score it, for he has done most of his damage inside of five heats.

Carver Saw Both
Having been a spectator at both Ghezzi's almost sensational round and Armstrong's sudden kavy, I came stumbling home wondering whether anything makes any sense any more. That Ghezzi positively can't shoot a 67 under pressure, but he did, and Armstrong can't knock-out a teacup out of young aunt

On the list of postwar projects, perhaps, is octopus fishing. If you're a fisherman with a good lung capacity and an uncontrollable itch for the "big game" of the deep, you could do worse than tackle this unique form of underwater fishing. Henry M. Hedges, Chicago sportsman and contractor, is an amateur authority on it. "Contrary to popular conception, stalking the octopus in his coral lair isn't exactly what you'd call dangerous, but you can get some nasty nips from the octopus' beak-like mouth."

Down Goes Hedges
Off the shores of Bora Bora in the Society group, Hedges went with a Polynesian to octopus fish. The native went down and came up with one, then Hedges dove.

"I thrust the spear daintily into his cave, then jiggled it around to beat the band—and out he came, swarming all over me! I made a jab—and missed! I decided it was time to come up for some air."

That was grinning at me. He said: "No matter. You go try again."

"It was so again or lose face. He was still grinning as I turned it over in my mind—and that made up my mind for me. I sucked in some air, exhaled, and plunged back down into the green underwater forest."

"I Had Him"
"He was waiting for me. I jiggled the spear at him again—and, whoosh! Here he came, ejecting his camouflage."

"I felt the spear bite into the pup's mass, and then the brute started wrapping his tentacles around me. I never—!" He shuddered, "felt anything like those slimy, creepy tentacles. Brother, if you haven't had an octopus tentacle around you, you haven't lived yet."

But I had him. I followed through on my first jab by needling him through the eyes the way Turi

CHARLEY PARKER HOLDS SPOTLIGHT

Eyes Of Track World Center On 17-Year-Old From Texas In New York Meet Today

NEW YORK, June 17.—(INS)—The greatest outdoor track meet since Pearl Harbor—the 36th national AAU track and field championships—opened at Randall's Island stadium in New York today with the eyes of the track clan focused on a lone 17-year-old school-boy from San Antonio, Texas.

The figure who occupies so much of the spotlight is Charley Parker, kid sprinter who has never been beaten since 1941 and has run up a victorious streak of 49 straight contests. The slight Texan has turned in 9.5 for the 100-yard sprint and 20.6 for the 220, a tenth of a second under the great Jesse Owens' time when Jesse set the national high school record in 1933.

Parker, however, is but one of a horde of 460 athletes from 35 states who will duel in the two-day championships. While the sprints will come under close scrutiny, four records are definitely in jeopardy as veterans and new stars take to the cinders—the 100 and 10,000 meters pole vault and shot put.

Nelson And Turnesa Tied In Tourney

Jug McSpaden Also In Running For Red Cross Open At New Rochelle, N. Y.

WYKAGYL COUNTRY CLUB,
NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 17.—(INS)—Byron Nelson, the long-legged Texan located at the Iverness club of Toledo, O., today was an odds-on favorite to win the 72-hole Red Cross open golf championship as the field started out on the third 18-hole round.

The former open and professional champion yesterday shot his second successive 69 on this tough par 72 course to reach the half-way point with 138 and in a deadlock for leadership with Mike Turnesa of the New York Turnesa golfing troupe.

Turnesa played his third round in 67, to be added to his opening 71, but still was regarded as strictly a dark horse behind Nelson and Jug McSpaden, the year's leading money-winner, who had a second round 68 to go with his opening 71 for 139 and one stroke behind the two leaders.

Next came Set. Vic Ghezzi, the first day leader, with a 67, who added a 73 for 140, and the next nearest to him were three strokes back with 143's. In this bracket were Ziggy Mellon and Andy La Pola.

TIGERS TAKE TWO
The Jefferson Tigers won a double-header softball game at Dean Park Friday afternoon. In the first game they defeated Phillips Street, 13-2. In the second game, against Dean Park, the score was 16-13 in favor of the Tigers. Any team wishing a game with the Jefferson Tigers, please call Frank at 6678R.

City Baseball league clubs are drawing fairly well but the fans are coughing up a few dimes at each game. You can't have cake unless you buy it, hence the contributions.

Pet Show Held
At Playground

George Washington Playground Is Scene Of Pet Show And Parade Friday Afternoon

Although rain stopped the pet parade at George Washington school playground Friday afternoon, it did not dampen the spirits of the 200 boys and girls who had gathered for the event.

Physicians Hear Of Penicillin Wonders

CHICAGO, June 17. (INS)—Penicillin, the "wonder" drug derived from mold effectively combats eye infections, ear, nose and throat ailments and has given promise of being valuable in treatment of peritonitis, research workers told the American Medical association Friday.

Earlier in the convention physicians were told of the effectiveness of penicillin in treatment of many other diseases, particularly gonorrhea, syphilis, meningitis and other infectious diseases.

Dr. John F. L. Keyes, of the Army's Bushnell hospital at Brigham City, Utah, described penicillin as a valuable and dependable drug aid for the eye specialist.

The drug also proved a valuable aid in the treatment of peritonitis in man, on the basis of studies on experimentally produced conditions in dogs, four Navy investigators reported.

Girl Wounded In Freak Accident

ST. LOUIS, June 17. (INS)—Darlene Anderson, six, lay near death in the St. Louis City hospital today after a freak accident, in which a rifle bullet passed through her left side.

Her brother, Donald, eight, was on the back porch of their home yesterday, shooting a bow and arrow. The arrow, a yardstick, went through a hole in the screen door and struck the trigger of a rifle which pointed at the children.

The bullet passed through the body of the young girl. Donald ran to his father, who was sleeping, and shouted, "Daddy, I just shot kister."

Anderson just returned from a three-day hunting trip, said he had placed the rifle and a shotgun on a kitchen cabinet and believed he had unloaded both.

Donald used a yardstick when his mother had taken all my arrows because she was afraid I'd hurt someone," he said.

STOCK MARKET LITTLE CHANGED

Most Issues Hold Above Previous Close During Morning Trading

NEW YORK, June 17—(INS)—The stock market after an active and moderately higher opening in today's short session ran into profit-taking, but most issues managed to hold above their previous close.

In the first 15 minutes of trading, large blocks appeared on the tape, particularly in steel, low priced motors and rails. In the first hour, 361,990 shares changed hands.

U. S. Steel's breaking through its supply levels of the last ten months was the signal for the increased activity in this section.

Republic American Rolling Iron and Laughlin were in demand at fractionally higher prices. U. S. Steel up fractionally, held at its peak, established yesterday.

Peckard, Hupp and Willys were turned over in blocks running to more than 500 shares, but the price changes were small.

Aviations were strong, with Douglas up 2 1/2 at one time, and others gaining fractions. The merchandising issues were steady and quiet, and the oils were inclined to ease.

Rails were featured by big blocks of Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific, both up fractions. Utilities were active around the previous close. Electrical equipments were high.

Club stocks, net profit-taking and in bonds, rail-lens were unchanged to fractions lower.

Jap Rubber Plant Probably Blasted

B-29 Super-Fortresses Probably Hit Huge Tire Factory In Yawata Attacks

(Written Especially for I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, June 17—(INS)—The B-29 Super-Fortresses on the road to Tokyo from the secret China bases probably damaged the largest rubber factory in the Orient.

Near the main target, Yawata steel works in Kyushu is the 1200-acre plant of the Bridgestone Tire Co., normally employing 10,000 men, women and children.

The machinery was American-made and cannot be replaced. I have seen the plant several times. It produces the bulk of Japan's airplane tires, auto and truck casings, millions of bicycle tires and millions of pairs of rubber-soled shoes.

Warehouses hold tons of raw rubber from the Dutch East Indies and Malaya. The big tire factory is one of the six main railway division points leading to nearby Moji, the largest port in western Japan.

The entire area glows at night from the blast furnaces, coke ovens, smelters, tin plate and rolling mills.

A picture of the devastation may have none for the raid was made at night—would show thousands of freight cars, coal gondolas and locomotives wrecked on the web of narrow-gauge tracks.

A transportation net work of 1,200 miles connecting dozens of small towns.

One point will be proved to the Japanese, that wherever they attempt to rebuild or to move their plants, our citadels of the air will destroy them.

Chicago Boy Likes To Ride Subways

Robert Riley, 8, Has Mania For Riding Subways, Family Nearly Frantic

CHICAGO, June 17—(INS)—William Riley was open to any and all suggestions for how to cure the enthusiasm of his son, Robert, 8, for riding the subway.

Riley took Robert for a ride on the subway the day it opened last December. The lad liked it so well he has been disappearing from his home two and three times a week.

Each time he was found riding the subway trains. The latest occasion was yesterday after he had been missing 24 hours. On another occasion he rode the trains for two and a half days before police caught him.

His family tried hiding his shoes, but Robert turned up the subway wearing his rubbers. They took him out of school; they consulted a psychiatrist.

But Robert still believes in riding the subway.

GERMANS OPEN FURIOUS ATTACK ON QUINEVILLE

By KINGSBURY SMITH
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 17—German troops, striving desperately to protect their now wholly-endangered Cherbourg peninsula, today opened a furious barrage against Allied positions in Quineville.

The town itself, still in Allied hands, late advice received at supreme headquarters indicated, although the troops within its boundaries do not have complete use of the village, which lies at the northern tip of the western flank below Cherbourg itself.

THIS AERIAL RECONNAISSANCE PHOTO, made by a Royal Air Force photographer before the invasion of Europe got under way, spotted a lot of the underwater hazards with which the Germans hoped to block the invaders. Thanks to photographs like this, the Allies were able to take measures that nullified such preparations. Note German workers fleeing for cover in the foreground. (International)

Mid-West Truckers Planning To Strike

CHICAGO, June 17—(INS)—Approximately 20,000 over-the-road truckers operating in eight midwest states and in the Chicago area will go on strike at midnight June 30.

Dexter C. Lewis, director of the central states driver's council, announced today.

The truck drivers, members of AFL locals, authorized the strike call in protest against failure of operators to comply with a WLB directive ordering a 12 percent wage increase.

Seven Killed In Plunge Of Plane

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17—(INS)—Navy officials today were continuing the search for bodies of seven crew members of a Navy transport plane, which exploded in mid-air and plummeted to a fiery crash in San Francisco Bay yesterday.

Two bodies were recovered shortly after the crash, and the Navy said that recovered wreckage will be taken to the Alameda Air Station for an examination.

The transport, a twin-engine Martin Mariner, was on a routine training flight. Twelfth Naval District officials revealed.

Word has been received by Mrs. Norma Biddle of South Lee avenue, that her husband, Pvt. George R. Biddle, has been returned to the hospital in Naples, Italy, for an operation. There he was visited by his brother, Clair E. Biddle, electrician's mate first class, USN. They had not met for two years.

Pvt. Biddle has been with the invasion forces on the Anzio beachhead for nine months, and was wounded in February, and back on the firing line in March. Both are sons of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Biddle of R. D. 6.

SWEET AND LOW IS CHANT IN SUBWAY

NEW YORK—(INS)—The most cheerful subway guard in New York City is on duty at Grand Central Station. During the rush hours, when the dash for trains resembles a stampede, the guard, a muscled Negro, uses the lullaby technique. He croons: "Just take your time, he chants sweet and low."

Plenty plenty of time. Just stand in the doorway and enjoy your selves. Passengers grin and discover their neighbors doing the same. They stop pushing, become polite.

Jap Rubber Plant Probably Blasted

B-29 Super-Fortresses Probably Hit Huge Tire Factory In Yawata Attacks

(Written Exclusively for I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, June 17.—(INS)—The B-29 Super-Fortresses on the road to Tokyo from the secret China bases probably damaged the largest rubber factory in the Orient.

Near the main target, Yawata steel works, in Kyushu is the 1200-acre plant of the Bridgestone Tire Co. normally employing 10,000 men women and children.

The machinery was American-made and cannot be replaced. It produces the bulk of Japan's airplane tires, auto and truck casings, millions of bicycle tires and millions of pairs of rubber soled shoes. Warehouses hold tons of raw rubber from the Dutch East Indies and Malaya.

The big tire factory is on one of the six main railway division points leading to nearby Moji, the largest point in western Japan. The entire area glows at night from the blast furnaces, coke ovens, smelters in plate and rolling mills.

A picture of the devastation—we may have none for the raid was made at night—would show thousands of freight cars, coal gondolas and locomotives, wrecked on the web of narrow-gauge tracks, a transportation net work of 1,200 miles connecting dozens of small towns.

One point will be proved to the Japanese, that wherever they attempt to rebuild or to move their plants, our citadels of the air will destroy them.

Chicago Boy Likes To Ride Subways

Robert Riley, 8, Has Mania For Riding Subways, Family Nearly Frantic

CHICAGO, June 17.—(INS)—William Riley was open to any and all suggestions today as to how to cure the enthusiasm of his son, Robert, 8, for riding the subway.

Riley took Robert for a ride on the subway the day it opened last December. The lad liked it so well he has been disappearing from his home two and three times a week. Each time he was found riding the subway trains. The latest occasion was yesterday after he had been missing 24 hours. On another occasion he rode the trains for two and a half days before police caught him.

His family tried hiding his shoes, but Robert turned up in the subway wearing his rubbers. They took him out of school; they consulted a psychiatrist.

But Robert still believes in riding the subway.

SWEET AND LOW IS CHANT IN SUBWAY

NEW YORK.—(INS)—The most cheerful subway guard in New York City is on duty at Grand Central Station. "Plenty—plenty of time. Just stand in the doorway and enjoy yourselves." Passengers grin and discover their neighbors doing the same. They stop pushing, become polite.

Hearing Comes To Abrupt End

Heated Argument In County Home Hearing Brings It To Sudden Close

Testimony in the charges of incompetency in the management of the county home was resumed Friday afternoon in the court house before the County Commissioners, but ended rather suddenly when an argument developed between Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Marshall, two of the complainants, and Mantz B. Hogue, welfare director for the county.

The near fight came when Mrs. Virginia Marshall, wife of M. N. Marshall, accused Mr. Hogue of calling her a vile name over the telephone. A rather heated argument ensued between the two which ended when Mr. Hogue called Mrs. Marshall a liar. At this, Mr. Marshall removed his coat and strode across the room, threatening to attack Mr. Hogue. The commissioners intervened.

One Witness

Only one witness was heard Friday, in addition to Mrs. Marshall, who has been conducting the examination of witnesses. The witness was Charles Boggs, of Ellwood City, whose brother is a patient in the county home hospital. Mr. Boggs testified that the men in the hospital were "untidy and unclean," and also said that the patients received an insufficient quantity of food upon their trays. He said he had taken food in for his brother but had been stopped by Mrs. Snyder.

Mrs. Marshall then read part of the testimony of Mrs. Weatherly, who had worked in the home. After reading part of it she was reminded by the County Commissioners that this testimony had been read before.

Several "passages at arms" ensued between County Commissioner Karl T. Rohrer and Mrs. Marshall. When the hearing opened Mr. Rohrer said to Mrs. Marshall: "I asked you to bring in evidence of wrongdoing at the home. What you have produced thus far is hearsay. This is only an over-the-fence fight, as I will prove later."

Claims Interference

Mrs. Marshall said guests at the home had informed her that the hearing on Friday had been cancelled. She asked if this was so. She was informed it was not.

Later Mr. Rohrer said to Mrs. Marshall: "Isn't it a fact that up to two years ago you were friends with the Snyders, but that friendship ceased when your son got into a fist fight on the golf course and you subpoenaed Jack Snyder as a witness?"

Mrs. Marshall denied a fist fight and said her 13-year-old son had been knocked down on the golf course by an 18-year-old boy. Later she said, Jack Snyder had told the story in the Marshall store but refused to appear as a witness, whereupon he was subpoenaed.

Mrs. Marshall alleged that Perry Snyder, superintendent of the home, spent most of his time in the boiler room, and asked Commissioner Travers where he usually found Mr. Snyder. He replied: "In the boiler room." Asked if the Snyders cooperated with him, Mr. Travers said they hadn't co-operated too well, but added, "I think the trouble is that Mr. and Mrs. Snyder have gotten very old and are unable to carry on as they once did."

Other Testimony

Mrs. Marshall then said she had a lot of material written down which she would like to read. "Is it direct evidence that you have seen or is it hearsay?" she was asked. "It is what the inmates have told me," said Mrs. Marshall. "Then it is hearsay and we don't want to hear it," said Mr. Rohrer. "Mr. and Mrs. Snyder have been on the job for 31 years, under several administrations, and there has never been any complaint either from the state inspectors nor a grand jury. I think it is wrong, now they are old, to try to drag them down."

Chairman Wimer said: "We want to hear all evidence pertaining to this issue, but we do not believe hearsay evidence is warranted. If we can't get anything but hearsay evidence we will adjourn the hearing."

Mrs. Marshall then addressed her remark to M. B. Hogue, with the result as stated in the opening paragraph.

The outfit was the first of its kind to be set up in the United States. It went to Africa in November, 1942, and introduced a system that gained a man hour every minute.

MacArthur Invites Orchestra Leader To Give Manila Concert

Conductor Eugene Ormandy Visits With Famous American Fighting General

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 17.—(INS)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has invited Conductor Eugene Ormandy of the Philadelphia orchestra to conduct a "victory concert" series in Manila when the Americans retake the Philippines.

This was disclosed in a letter from Ormandy, who wrote that the invitation was extended when he visited MacArthur's headquarters and discussed music with the general for two hours.

Ormandy wrote that MacArthur offered to fly Ormandy to Manila together with a group of his best players, as a means of strengthening the Manila Symphony orchestra, which the general regards "as good as any."

Refutes Rumors Camp To Be Closed

Rumors which have been in general circulation in this area for the past two weeks concerning the closing of Camp Reynolds at Transfer, Pa., were commented upon today by Brigadier-General Jesse A. Ladd, commanding the camp.

In a statement released today General Ladd said "no official instructions have been received as to the closing of the camp."

"Furthermore, the nature of the camp is such that it cannot be closed quickly and prior notice will be given if and when such instructions are received."

The statement came as an answer to the rumors which have had the camp closed, have had it transformed into a prisoner of war camp and other changes.

It is claimed that there are only about 100 books now in existence, which were made before the year 1500, and almost one-third of these are owned by the Library of Congress in Washington.

Man Dies During Fire Today At Big Detroit Race Track

Fire Destroys 32 Horses And Razes Two Big Barns; Estimate Damage At $225,000

DETROIT, June 17.—(INS)—One man was burned to death, five were injured and several were missing in a fire which destroyed 32 horses and razed two barns at the Detroit race track within 45 minutes early today.

The total estimated damage was $225,000. Loss of the horses was estimated at $200,000 and the barns and equipment were valued at $25,000.

The dead man was David Scott, 36, groom for the stable of David J. Ferguson of Detroit.

Track officials said there was a strong possibility that other stable employees still were in the ruins of the barns. Trainers reported that a number of their men were not accounted for.

The Ferguson stable lost all of its horses including Bell Buzzer, the three-year-old colt which carried Ferguson's colors in the Kentucky Derby this year. Also lost were Wise Colors, Black Skinner, My Myri, Great Scot and Coffee Man.

Would Limit Term For Presidency

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—Sen. Hugh Butler (R) Neb., said Friday that he will launch a fight after the anticipated congressional recess for a constitutional amendment limiting the President to either two four-year terms or one of six years.

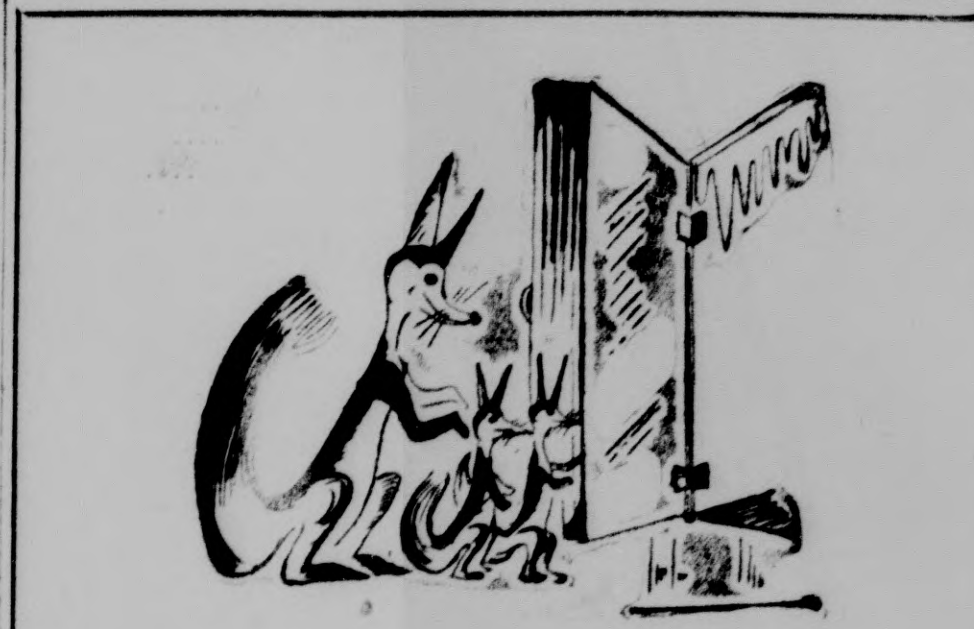

"The proposed amendment goes far beyond the incumbent in the White House," said Butler. "Franklin D. Roosevelt will be out of office. But if we are to preserve responsible government, we must do this. We have the assurance that each succeeding president will not equally ambitiously start running, as soon as he is elected to a first term, for a fourth term and a fifth term. This precedent of President Roosevelt must be ruthlessly killed off."

Crimes were lurid, futile assaults against the Russian army. But through-out all, Moscow has maintained silence. The red armies may have been fighting in various locations, but it is more probable that they are preparing to fight.

With the opening of the allied offensives from the west and south, it is virtually a certainty that Marshal Stalin will hurl his red legions and everything they have got against the east wall of Hitler's fortress.

Where Will Blow Fall?
The second most common question relative to the Russian battle zone is where will the blow or blows fall? No one can answer that by guesswork.

Marshal Stalin might start an assault in the extreme north against Finland. It might be hurled at the Baltic states—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. On the other hand, it might be directed at a terrific blow launched through Poland.

It is also possible that an assault from northern Bessarabia may be launched southward towards the Romanian oilfields. The capacity of Stalin's red armies for offensive action seems to be limitless. One reason for that is because every wheel in the country is devoted to the service of supply and replenishment. That not only applies to all army equipment but to all manufacturing stock.

It is general speculation as to the places of major assault seems to have divided itself between one—a great offensive against Berlin from Poland; and two—one of equal magnitude aimed southward from Bessarabia against the Ploesti oilfields and the plains of the Danube.

House Committee Slashes Boost In Public Debt

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS)—The House Ways and Means committee by unanimous vote today slashed from 50 to 30 billion dollars the administration's request for legislation increasing the public debt limit.

The committee action raised the debt limit from its present 110 billion dollars to a new limit of 240 billions was taken after Republican vigorously opposed the treasury limit of 250 billions. The action also came after Daniel W. Bell, undersecretary of the treasury had agreed that the lower limit would meet immediate needs if the administration could request its request next March.

Bell told the committee the debt limit should be increased lest the government be forced to halt the Fifth War Loan drive beginning June 12.
